Big Ship Docks After All-Night Flight, Reloads And Sails Away Again

LAKEHURST, N. J., Nov. 3—America's queen of the skies, the navy dirigible Akron, went aloft this morning on a training flight with 206 passengers—the largest number ever taken up in any airship.

The silver cigar arrived earlier this morning after an all night flight, hooked onto the mooring mast and swayed there in a breeze until she was refueled and her larder restocked.

Trip Outlined.

Lieut. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, the Akron's skipper, said the ship would again cruise over Philadelphia and New York. No orders had been received for a trip over New England.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Pa Newc is convinced that the only way that the Perry highway crossing at Harlansburg will be made safe is for the erection of a regular traffic light signal. Many state highways in other states are so marked, and dangerous crossings such as that at Harlansburg should be so marked. Bad accidents are becoming all too numerous at this intersection.

With perfect weather prevailing, a record vote should be cast at the polls today in the city and county. Many voters were seen out an early hour this morning. There seems to be much more interest in the election today than on many former occasions.

As far as can be learned, there were no serious accidents in the county on the opening day of the hunting season, in spite of the fact that more were engaged in the pursuit of the elusive bunny.

The western section of Pennsylvania is practically clear of detour marks, according to the latest detour bulletin, but one detour of any consequence existing on the Perry Highway between Sheakleyville and Meadville. There is one small detour in Midland borough, and several below Pittsburgh. The bulletin is posted in The News lobby.

On North Mercer street this morning Pa Newc saw an automobile with a frozen radiator. It was the first of the season and other motorists who saw the car in the sad plight vowed that their cars would get a swig of alcohol today.

"Wheat Has Come Back To Stay" Is Verdict Of Leading Traders

Farmers Benefit To Extent Of Millions Of Dollars —See Prosperity

(BULLETIN)
By WEST PETERSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 3.—Wheat hit a dollar a bushel here today.

One carload of Amber Durum wheat, used in making Macaroni, was sold at a dollar a bushel by the Keystone Grain company to the Pillsbury company for a Clyde, N. D. company.

The price was 26 cents above the Duluth quotation for December Durum.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Wheat has come back to stay, and its return to higher levels probably marks the beginning of the uptrend in all commodity prices which will point the way to a new period of prosperity.

This was the concensus today of traders, statisticians and expert observers affiliated with the Chicago Board of Trade, principal mart on which the drama of the golden grain has been enacted.

About 20 cents above the season low, wheat prices now are approximately 50 per cent higher than they were one month ago.

At the opening today wheat was ¼ cent higher to ⅜ cent lower. May wheat opened at 67-¼-¾, December at 63-¼-½, May at 66⅝, and July at 68-½-⅞. Corn was ¼ to ½ cent up and oats were unchanged to ¼ cent down.

Farmers Benefit

Among those benefitting from the rise are the farmers. Assuming that they held one-fourth of the year's crop, their paper profits for the last

MUKDEN, Nov. 3.—The threatened Japanese advance into northern Manchuria, increasing the possibility of a clash between Russian and Japanese troops near the Siberian-Manchurian border, got under way today from Chengkiatung, 100 miles north of Mukden.

Japanese military headquarters here announced that troops were being moved northward into the Tsitsihar region to "enforce" orders to Chinese authorities to repair a bridge over the Nonni river.

Bridge Destroyed

The destruction of the railroad bridge, located 30 miles south of Tsitsihar, capital of the vast province of Heilungkiang, has held up railway traffic between Taonan and Anganki, near Tsitsihar, and resulted a few days ago in a Japanese ultimatum to the Heilungkiang authorities to make the necessary repairs.

The repairs have not been carried out, however, the Tsitsihar military commander, General Ma Chan-Shan informing the Japanese that he did

Allegheny's Thousands Of Voters Flock To Polls As Bitter Campaign Ends

BALLOT BOXES ARE KEPT UNDER GUARD

Kline-Coy-Lawrence Faction Seeks To Unthrone Charles "Buck" McGovern

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—Under the watchful eyes of now familiar State police, Allegheny county's thousands of voters trooped to the polls today to end with their ballots the bitter campaign which has been waged since the riotous September primary.

Emulating their chief, County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, who remained awake several nights to guard the ballot boxes in the Pinchot-Brown-Hemphill election, hundreds of independent lieutenants remained on guard throughout the night to forestall any attempts at ballot box stuffing in the polling places.

Voters Puzzled

Voters today were faced with a crazy-quilt of candidates, many of them registered on as many as four party tickets. Party affiliations and support were badly twisted in the puzzling alignment by which the Kline-Coyne city organization was extending its support to David Lawrence, the Democratic candidate for county commissioner.

Overshadowing all else was the

Election Returns

Returns of the city and county election contests today will be flashed from The News into North Mercer street tonight as soon as available.

Day's Election In New Castle Is Rather Quiet

County Commissioner And Controller Only Battles Of Interest

SEE LIGHTER VOTE THAN IN PRIMARY

Flurries In Small Towns Over Mistakes Made In Ballots

Differing somewhat from the recent primary which caused some excitement at many of the polls, today's election was a rather listless affair up until noon. The vote was light, the polls showed few workers and fewer spectators.

With the exception of county commissioner and county controller there is not much interest in the election, the Republican ticket being in little danger. In the two fights mentioned there are Independent candidates and these are providing what little interest is being manifest.

Less Than Primary?

If the listlessness continues throughout the day, the probabilities are that the vote will run considerably under the primary vote which was well over 12,000 in New Castle.

Slight flurries were occasioned in Pulaski, New Bedford and Volant when it was discovered that errors had been made in listing the candidates on the ballots. New ballots were made up for Pulaski and New Bedford but the Volant error was not serious enough to occasion the expense and delay.

Polls will remain open until seven o'clock tonight and the returns from the various precincts should not be as late as they were in the primary.

Congress Elections In Many Districts Holding Attention

Democrats Confident Of Organizing House—Voters Of Nation At Polls Today

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—As a sort of prelude to the great test a year hence, voters in many states went to the polls today to register their opinions and their prejudices in the election of five members of congress, three governors, and thousands of candidates for minor local offices, scattered throughout the country.

It is an off-year election of no especial national significance, except as the congressional elections may affect numerical control of the new congress, yet political leaders have their eyes open and their ears attuned to catch the first indication of possible "trends" for 1932.

Depression Test

If the elections reveal a Democratic trend, it will be accepted as auguring something of the same sort for next year when the two great parties come to grips in the great presidential contest.

If, on the other hand, the trend is the other way, Republicans will

Friends Of Navy League President Urge Him To Offer Hoover Apology

(International News Service)

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—A big question mark hung squarely over the head of William Howard Gardiner today.

The navy league president had his choice of apologizing publicly for saying that President Hoover had shown "abysmal ignorance" about Naval affairs, or submitting his case to a committee of five which has been handpicked by the White House, and which includes two staunch members of the administration.

On Thursday, the league's executive committee meets here to consider the president's assertion Gardiner has spread "a tissue of falsehoods" about government naval policies.

May Continue Fight

The "big navy" exponent must decide whether he will stand trial before the Hoover tribunal, apparently without benefit of counsel or the right of calling witnesses.

There were reports certain members of the executive committee would advise Gardiner to make a qualified apology to the president before matters advanced further.

On the other hand, it was being suggested he would resist what naval advocates are calling a "white wash" session and continue his fight against drastic paring of the navy budget.

Inquiry Limited

Three members of the Navy League and two assistant cabinet officials will sit in behalf of the White House to disprove Gardiner's charges. They are: Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman, retired; John Hays Ham-

Election Judges Ordered Arrested For Trying To Balk Voting Machines

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—The arrest of 30 election judges was ordered this morning coincident with the opening of the polls. The officials are charged with plotting to balk the use of voting machines in the election today by their failure to appear last night at a meeting called by county commissioners for instruction in the use of the vote machines as required by law.

Light balloting was reported for the most part shortly after the polling booths opened today, lack of contests resulting in a general apathy of the voters.

He was expecting an attack, it was understood here, from the forces of General Chang Hai-Peng, who has an army at Taonan, but been prevented from moving northward by the wrecked raidroad bridge.

With the bridge repaired by Japanese engineers and protected by Japanese guns, there are reasons to believe that Chang Hai-Peng will try to achieve his ambition of ousting Ma Chan-Shan at Tsitsihar, and setting himself up as the Heilungkiang War Lord, possibly with Japanese support.

WHEAT PRICE UPTURN MARKS BEGINNING OF GENERAL UPTREND

month have amounted to more than $35,000,000 on the basis of an increase of 20 cents a bushel since the lows of early October.

Prices must go much higher before the Federal Farm Board can hope to recoup part of the losses suffered in its stabilization operations, however. Much of the Farm board wheat was purchased at more than $1 a bushel.

One of the most encouraging signs, according to high officials of the board of trade, is the fact that numerous important speculators have turned from stocks to wheat. They believe that the price of the grain has been too low and that a continued rise is almost inevitable.

Cutten Is Mystery Man

Arthur W. Cutten, noted for his daring raids, continued today to be the "mystery man" of the present movement. He refused to comment on reports emanating in New York that he has plunged heavily in wheat on the Chicago and Winnipeg exchanges.

"I can't say a thing," he told International News Service. "However, I am convinced that wheat has been cheap for a long time and still is too cheap."

Cutten, who in 1925 was reported to have made $15,000,000 in the $2 wheat market, some time ago remarked that "important interests must have realized that wheat has been depressed to a ridiculously low level."

"Sales by the Federal Farm Board," he said then, "may be a good deal larger than the trade generally supposes. If the board gets rid of the bulk of its holdings, that will put a different aspect on the situation all over the world."

Outlook For Better Prices

It is estimated that the 1932 American wheat crop will be approximately 476,000,000 bushels, or 3,000,000 smaller than the crop this year. Export stocks in Argentina and Australia are reported reduced, while the crops in Continental Europe are insufficient. Traders estimated the world's visible supply has been reduced 15,000,000 or 16,000,000 bushels.

"We all look for continued better prices," one prominent official of the Chicago Board of Trade told International News Service today. "It is significant that there are people trading on the floor now that have not traded for a long time."

STATE TROOPERS GUARD AT POLLS IN PITTSBURGH

race for the three county commissionerships which, because of large patronage possibilities generally assure the winners the factual leadership of the party. The "regular" Republican candidates were State Senator William D. Mansfield and the Militant Independent, McGovern. However, McGovern was likewise registered on the Fair Play, Square Deal and Independent tickets with former State Senator C. M. Barr.

The Kline-Coyne faction was extending the support of the city "organization" to Lawrence and favored the Mansfield-Lawrence combination. McGovern and Barr charged that the city organization had distributed to thousands of city employes marked sample ballots indicating that they were to cast their ballots for Mansfield and Lawrence.

Last Minute Fight

Meanwhile, attorneys for the Kline-Coy-Lawrence faction were making a last-minute fight to prevent the registration commission from wiping off the slates some 11,500 names of "phantom" voters, many of them registered from vacant lots and warehouses. Judge Elder W. Marshall in common pleas court was to rule on the eligibility of these names late today.

Judge James H. Gray acting on a score of petitions re-arranged the election boards in several districts where the independent faction charged gross irregularities were in evidence during the primary campaign. The October grand jury, now completing the investigation of election frauds which began last month, was expected further to intensify political feeling by bringing in another list of indictments before Judge Gray today.

Leaders of the Republican county committee issued the usual last-minute statements, conspicuous this year because of the absence of the usual cry for party solidarity. Although confessing confidence in the eventual Republican victory, James H. McClure, campaign manager, in his statement, confined himself solely to a lengthy explanation of the intricacies which face the voters at the polls today. It was generally understood that one of the Republican candidates was "Lawrence who has been charged from various quarters with making a "deal" with the Kline-Coyne faction.

Strictly Party Lines

Twelve Republican candidates for judicial posts were expected to be returned without little effort. The contest will be strictly on party lines with little opposition from the Democratic contenders.

Judge James B. Drew again was favored to poll a huge vote in Allegheny county on both the Republican and Democratic tickets. Reports from Philadelphia and Harrisburg assure him similar majorities in these sections and his election is deemed a foregone conclusion.

Hundred of minor posts, from aldermanic contests to councilmanic struggles, were to be filled in the general election today, little disorder was expected in the congested city districts where the primary battling was accompanied by near-riots as the nominations were expected to result in elections wholly on party lines.

Sixty State Police

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—More than 60 State police from Butler and Greensburg barracks, 70 deputy sheriffs and the entire force of county detectives were on hand to protect voters and guard against election as the general November election balloting began today.

The State police were held at the registration commission offices for instant assignment to trouble zones. County detectives and deputy sheriffs were mobilized at headquarters to thwart expected trouble in "organization-controlled" zones.

A squad of 16 deputy sheriffs invaded Wilmerding. Home of John Volpe, long a Republican boss, and in the primary election, the scene of startling disorders. Burgess R. W. Bishop asked for the deputy sheriffs reporting to Chief Deputy B. V. Coffey that he did not believe "local police could protect the citizens." Later, a squad of State troopers were ordered to take their posts in the borough.

congratulate themselves that the worst effects of the depression are over, and that the forthcoming year will witness a rejuvenation of Republican fortunes. These fortunes have been none too bright for two years. Just a year ago today they lost control of both branches of congress for all practical purposes.

Most interest naturally centres in the congressional elections, of which there are two in Ohio, and one each in Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania.

Gubernatorial contests are being decided in New Jersey, Kentucky, and Mississippi, while a score of other states have elections of local character.

Roosevelt-Smith Split

New York, in addition, furnishes an interesting test of strength between Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Ex-Gov. Al Smith, on a local issue. It concerns Gov. Roosevelt's reforestation program, which Gov. Smith has criticised as being useless and inadvisable. Because of their reported strained relationship and its possible bearing on Gov. Roosevelt's presidential aspirations, there is large political interest in this purely local issue.

The expectation in Washington is that the Democrats will organize the next house. The results today may clinch numerical superiority for them.

The existing line-up of the house is 214 Democrats, 213 Republicans, and one Farmer-Laborite, with several vacancies. Five of these vacancies will be filled in today's balloting.

The districts and the candidates are:

First Ohio (Cincinnati)—John B. Hollister (R) vs. David Lohrbach (D).

Twentieth Ohio (Cleveland)—D. H. Parry (R) vs. M. L. Sweeney (D).

Eighth Michigan (Saginaw)—Foss O. Eldred (R) vs. M. J. Hart (D).

Seventh New York (Brooklyn)—Wm. L. Padgett (R) vs. Joseph Delaney (D).

Democrats Favored

The Democrats are expected to have comparatively easy victories in Brooklyn and Cleveland, where those districts are normally Democratic. The Republicans, similarly, are expected to have little trouble in retaining the Philadelphia district.

The other two, however, in Cincinnati and in the Saginaw district of Michigan, are expected to provide a sterner test. The Cincinnati district is the late Nick Longworth's old district, and the Democrats have put forth unusual efforts to capture it, not only because of the seat itself, but for psychological reasons as well.

With the exception of 1912, the year of the big Republican split, it was regularly returned a Republican to Washington. It nearly always turned up fat Republican majorities in the past, but last year the popular "Nick" barely squeezed through by 3,500. On the basis of that fact, and the protest vote anticipated because of unemployment and business conditions, the Democrats have built high hopes.

STORE OWNED BY FORMER DEPUTY

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 3.—Police today were investigating a mysterious explosion in which James Spragg, 27, was fatally injured when he attempted to enter the store of his grandfather, T. W. Beatty, 77, to investigate an earlier blast.

As he entered the store, followed by Beatty, a second explosion occurred, rendering him unconscious and showering him with blazing debris. Beatty was hurled to the street by the force of the explosion. He was removed to the Washington hospital suffering body injuries.

Chief County Detective William Dinsmore, of Washington county, said the explosion was the result of a plot of seeking revenge on Spragg for his activities during recent labor disputes. Dinsmore said Spragg was a deputy sheriff during the coal mine strike last spring and several months ago was a guard in a steel mill at Canonsburg involved in a labor dispute. Dinsmore expressed the opinion that the victim made several enemies during his police work and that the plot to wreck the store was one of revenge.

Slight Quake Is Felt On Coast

Maywood, Suburb Of Los Angeles, Reports Earth Tremor Today

(International News Service)

Small houses were shaken and dishes were rattled, but there was no damage.

Many other points in the south and southeastern portions of Los Angeles reported having felt the temblor.

It apparently was not felt, however, in the heart of the city, workers in the city hall failing to notice the shock.

STAGE IS SET FOR AIRING OF NAVAL CHARGES

mond, multi-millionaire mining engineer of Washington; Eliot Wadsworth, of New York, assistant secretary of the treasury under Woodrow Wilson; undersecretary of state William R. Castle, Jr., and assistant secretary of the navy Ernest Lee Jahnckle. Hammond, Wadsworth and Jahncke were arrested as league members, picked from the full 4,000 membership.

Scope of the inquiry was limited by the president in this language:

"This inquiry is solely into the assertions of facts made by President Gardiner in his statement of Oct. 28, not into his opinions or conclusions, nor into budgetary or general policies of the Navy"

The "vindication board" it was added, is merely 'to examine the accuracy of such statements of President Gardiner of the Navy League as may be readily determined from departmental records."

This was taken to mean that no public hearings would be held: that the committee would confine itself to an examination of state and Navy department records, and that Gardiner would be denied the right of rebuttal.

Hoover Confident

President Hoover is confident he can disprove the Gardiner allegations that he and Premier MacDonald reached never-revealed naval agreements at the Rapidan camp in 1929, and that the senate foreign relations committee was denied access to details of the negotiations leading to the London Naval conference of last year.

Because it generally is conceded these charges are inaccurate, the word was being passed that the Navy League, executive committee, might decide to suggest that their president retract. Henry Breckinridge, assistant secretary of war during the Wilson administration, and a member of the committee, already has disavowed that portion of the pamphlet which questioned the presidential intelligence.

and papers in the cracks of the doors and windows in her ktichen and turned on the jets of the gas range.

Family Destitute.

Becoming impatient as the gas slowly flowed through the house, the woman obtained a pistol and fired a shot into each son. She then walked to her infant daughter, seated in a high-chair, and placed the weapon against the youngster's chest, pulling the trigger.

Then, according to the police, the mother fired two bullets into her own temple.

The family was destitute, police explained, the husband having been out of work for the last eight months. He was employed as a chef in a lunch wagon.

It is understood that the mother wrote she could no longer stand the worry over their impoverished condition and the starvation that confronted them.

CLUB MEMBERS HEAR MRS. M. B. TRESCHER

Monday afternono the regular meeting of the Woman's club was held in the parlors of the Highland United Presbyterian church with Mrs. Maude B. Trescher of Jeannette as the guest speaker.

Mrs. A. B. Street, president of the club, opened the business meeting and gave some of the high spots of the recent state convention at York. She said the keynote of the convention this year was "Spend the pennies and keep sane". She gave an excerp from Jane Deeter Ripper's speech saying that she had said "If a child is taught right they will see the results". Miss Ripper is head of the national Girl Scouts. She also gave some extracts from Bruno Roselli's speech and said his speech was anything but flattering to the women and they resented a great many of his statements.

Mrs. W. P. Felch sang "America the Beautiful" after which Mrs. Bella Taylor introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Trescher is chairman of the legislative department in the southwestern district of the Pennsylvania State Federation and has been most active in politics throughout the state. She urged the women to take an active interest in the legislative department of their club and to know what bills are coming up in the state and national bodies.

Her talk was most enlightening and interesting and she was consulted on many issues at the close of the meeting.

Mrs. Street appointed a committee, Mrs. H. M. Kirk, Mrs. F. F. Urey, Mrs. H. W. McKee, Jr., Mrs. Eliah Kaplan and Mrs. John Elliott, to raise funds among the women of the city to finance a trip to Paris for Mrs. W. L. Cosel, who has been asked to sit in at the international disarmament conference in February.

The November 16 meeting will be in charge of the Department of Fine Arts with Mrs. Alvah Shumaker and Mrs. John E. Elliott in charge of arrangements.

BEWARE CARBON-MONOXIDE SEASON!

"GRADE crossings, jay-walking, excessive speed and violations of the rules of the road have been duly emphasized as death causes attributed to the automobile. Indeed, too much stress can not be placed upon these exceedingly important factors. However, the automobile must answer to another murderous indictment which, by the way, is entirely disassociated with motion. It is carbon monoxide," states Doctor Theodore B. Appel, State Secretary of Health.

"It may be hard for many automobile owners to realize that a car standing still in the garage can kill just as definitely as when being driven on a slippery pavement at sixty or more miles an hour. But those having doubts on the subject need only to scan any edition of the daily papers to note that some man or woman has been killed by running the engine of the car in a closed garage. That the death has been a painless and seductive one is of little importance to the victim or the family left behind.

"To cite a case in point, less than a week ago a man pridefully remarked to a friend that he was a most careful driver, that safety first was and always would be his motto on the road. And no doubt he was quite sincere about it. But he was buried just the same, simply because he did not sufficiently appreciate that caution begins in the garage.

"Fatalities from this cause always increase as the cold weather sets in. Rather than suffer a few minutes from the outside chill, a large number of thoughtless citizens prefer to die by way of carbon monoxide poisoning. The combustion in the automobile creates this invisible and deadly menace which is freed through the exhaust pipes of the car. Colorless, odorless and tasteless, it kills those who do not have the proper regard for its powers.

"Tinkering with the car while the motor idles in a closed garage is actually inviting death; while starting an automobile under such conditions is flirting with serious illness.

"Frigid weather may be uncomfortable for a few minutes but it is nothing compared to a funeral. Therefore, choose by far the lesser evil and open wide garage doors before starting the engine for any purpose. In this manner show respect for carbon monoxide. You may be sure it has no respect for you".

WORD OF ENCOURAGEMENT HIS LAST PUBLIC SERVICE

In paying a last tribute to the late Thomas A. Edison, nothing more impressive can be said than to repeat what was probably his last public statement, flashed by radio from his laboratory in Fort Myers, Florida, to the National Electric Light Association last summer, at Atlantic City. His words which follow show his interest in humanity which he had served so long and faithfully. In these difficult times they should be engraved on the consciousness of every American citizen.

"My message to you is to be courageous. I have lived a long time. I have seen history repeat itself again and again. I have seen many depressions in business. Always America has come out strong and more prosperous. Be as brave as your fathers were before you. Have faith—go forward."

SEVEN VACANCIES IN THE HOUSE

Since the election of November last death has been active in the ranks of the Congressional delegations. The election resulted in the choice of 218 Republicans, 216 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite. Today there are still seven vacancies, all of which expect one will be filled in time for the organization of the House on December 7. This one is in New Hampshire. The successor of Fletcher Hale, who died on a steamship returning from Europe, can not be selected, under New Hampshire law, until late in December. Of the six other districts now unrepresented, two are normally Democratic and four normally Republican. Should all six cling to party fealty, the House of December 7 will be composed of 217 Republicans, 216 Democrats and the solitary Farmer-Laborite, Paul Kvale of Minnesota.

Just where Representative Kvale will stand upon the election of a Speaker is uncertain. Should he side with the Democrats, the two great parties would be equally divided. And then there is a bunch of so-called Progressives to reckon with—fourteen of them. These Republican Insurgents are ready to dicker. They have a bargain-counter lot of legislative measures which they demand shall be brought to a vote. So in any event the situation in the House is very much involved with a decidedly dubious outlook.

The Republican members are to caucus at the end of November. Their leading candidates for Speaker are Snell of New York and Floor Leader Tilson of Connecticut. The Insurgents are not kindly disposed to either one. But since they are not at all likely to participate in the caucus, their influence over the proceedings, if any, will be exerted from the sidelines. In the meantime it is interesting, if not significant, to hear Senator Moses of New Hampshire predict that the Democrats, who are united upon Garner of Texas, will organize the House. It might be remarked that, should this prediction hold, not many Republican tears will be shed opines the great Philadelphia Inquirer. But whatever happens it is most desirable that the choice of a Speaker should be made outright and free from any deals with the Insurgent element.

"The Principle of the Thing" I Got Into a Row A Dollar and a Half

By MARSHALL MASLIN

There's a useful phrase.

When you're doing something and you're a little uneasy about it, you say, "I'm doing it for the Principle of the Thing." . . . That's your defense. That explains everything. You'd like to be kinder, you'd like to be more generous, but the Principle of the Thing stands in your way, and, of course, a man can't go against his principles.

When we do something decent, when we help another fellow out of a jam, we don't talk so much about our principles. We explain that he was a fine human being and he appealed to our sympathies—and, besides, we wouldn't have been able to sleep o' nights if we had withheld our helping hand. . . . We feel better when we do the right thing, but we excuse ourselves for our softness. We don't want everybody to know.

But the Principle of the Thing is quite different. Almost always when we talk of that, we feel on the defensive. We are explaining. We are trying to put ourselves in a better light. We are putting in a plea of not guilty of stubbornness, not guilty of selfishness, not guilty of wanting our own way at the expense of the other fellow.

Once, I remember, I got into a row with a business firm. I wanted something. The firm didn't want to give it to me. I felt abused. They felt they were right. I hung on and argued. They argued back. I wrote letters. They answered them. . . . The thing went on for days and for days, and, at last I won or they grew tired of the squabble and let me win. . . . And then I felt ashamed. . . . The whole trouble was over a dollar and a half. But I never admitted, even once, even to myself that I was fighting for a dollar and a half. No, I was fighting for the Principle of the Thing. I was carrying the banner for the innocent, blameless, incorruptible public. . . . So I won, and the victory was hollow and rankling.

I'm not the only one, either. Look back over your own life. Think of all those times when you wanted something and couldn't have it and insisted on getting it because of the Principle of the Thing. . . . And then blush!

AUTUMN

The falling leaves seem pitiful to see
Cold, old, brown things that quit life's rugged stem.
They've clung so gladly to their mother tree
And now the frozen earth is taking them.

I watch them fluttering 'neath a somber sky,
Too frail to battle with the wind today
And wonder if, like men, they fear to die
And longer on the branch would like to stay.

I watched them come to bud in early spring.
And through the summer knew their friendly shade.
Among them I have heard the song birds sing
Ours was a friendship brief, but gladly made.

But now too old and tired to carry on,
A last farewell they seem to wave at me,
Drift past my window swiftly and are gone
To find their purpose in eternity.

Bible Thought For Today

THE TWO GREAT COMMANDMENTS:—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbour as thyself.—Luke 10:27.

THE ROAD HOG

He's considerate, thoughtful and kind,
No more courteous person you'll find;
But when out in his car
He's too reckless by far—
There's a screw loose somewhere in his mind.

He's polite to all whom he may meet,
In his office, or while on his feet;
But when driving about
In his auto, look out!
H is heedless, unkind and a cheat.

In his daily affairs I'm aware,
He appears to be honest and fair;
But when e'er he gets back
Of the wheel in his hack,
Let pedestrians and others beware.

He will pass ev'ry car on the hill,
Just regardless of those he might kill;
And he buts in between
In a way that is mean,
Causing others to slow up, or spill.

He takes all the road on the curves
At a speed that would shatter one's nerves;
Causing others to sway
Far out of their way
And to cuss him for all he deserves.

He respects others' rights, so I hear
In a manner that fosters good cheer;
But when driving, his gall
Is a menace to all—
He's the road hog sane autoists fear.

BANKS LEARNED VALUE OF NEWSPAPER SPACE

Paid Advertising Used in Philadelphia to Reassure Depositors and Halt Withdrawals.

(Special to Editor & Publisher)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—Newspaper advertising proved its effectiveness during the last few weeks in aiding in the readjustment of this city's banking situation, following the collapse of more than a dozen financial institutions.

Many conservative bankers and heads who have all along discounted the need for and the value of newspaper advertising, learned that such advertising is credited with having actually saved several banks from "runs" that threatened financial ruin.

The bankers learned another lesson, too, the importance of frankness in dealing with their customers They came out boldly in newspaper advertising and laid their cards on the table. They gave their depositors facts and figures about the condition of their institutions and made plain that the latter were in excellent shape financially and well able to meet all demands at 100 cents on the dollar, plus interest.

Heavy withdrawls had been under way, following the closing of several of the big institutions. It was this seepage of deposits that threatened a widespread breakdown of the banks, influenced by a general rush of depositors to withdraw their funds. Fear gripped thousands of depositors and even the strongest of the savings funds were feeling the disastrous effects of this seepage.

The Philadelphia Clearing House Association—most conservative of the financial organizations in relation to advertising—went into the newspapers and in large space told of the stability of its member banks and strongly advised against withdrawls and hoarding, explaining the ultimate effects of such acts on business generally. This appeal was followed by statements along the same lines by individual banks, rushed into print to explain their financial stability.

Some of the merchants followed suit. Then came the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce and the Philadelphia Business Progress Association. Later the Knights of Columbus, the B'nai B'rith and other organizations took large-space newspaper advertising advising caution in withdrawls and explaining how business generally is supported by and functions with depositors' funds in local banks.

These "explanations" were news to thousands of depositors who had previously never learned the functions of a bank, except that it is a place where money is deposited and interest allowed.

The result of the newspaper advertising campaign was a lull in the rush for withdrawls. Confident that momentary fear—not the banking situation—was responsible for the rush to take out deposits, the onslaught on the banks soon subsided.

Some of the banks reported that reconsideration had been given by hundreds of depositors to applications for withdrawals and that even the applications themselves were later withdrawn.

Future Bridge Possibilities Suggested By Longest Span

Mammoth Structure Over Hudson River, While Man's Greatest Bridge-Building Achievement, Promises Even Greater Ones To Come

National pride in the new George Washington Bridge, over the Hudson River between New York and New Jersey, is expressed in many comments on the completion of the structure. The announcement that principles developed in the construction make it probable that even greater spans will be built in the future creates much interest, and further importance attaches to this bridge because of its contribution to the solution of the traffic problem of the metropolis.

"A marvellous work of men is brought to completion," declares the NEWARK EVENING NEWS, pointing out that the bridge "has a central span twice as long as any other bridge has ever had, and a width that makes other bridges puny by comparison." The Evening News says of the builder, Othmar Hermann Ammann, native of Switzerland and resident of New Jersey, "the world's engineers see a shy man, one of themselves, raised to a pinnacle of accomplishment that will perptuate his name in history." The ROCKFORD REGISTER-REPUBLIC remarks that "completion of a stupendous enterprise is pointed out as exemplifying the true American spirit," and agrees that it presents "an engineering feat that will have a place in history," adding, "three times stronger than the Camden-Philadelphia bridge cables, those of the George Washington bridge are capable of holding in suspension at one time ten of the largest oceangoing liners or battleships fully loaded."

"The tribute that the mighty structure pays the engineering genius and executive ability that built it," is voiced by the ASBURY PARK PRESS, recalling that "not many years ago the gigantic suspension span of 3500 feet was considered impossible, yet today it is in active service." That paper states further: "Nor has it been long that two States could unite in financing so stupendous a project. Now, through the agency of the Port Authority, a medium exists through which the Hudson River itself is dwarfed by a tunnel and bridge that have been been dedicated to public transportation."

"That New Jersey fully appreciates the vast amount of new traffic which the bridge will bring," according to the JERSEY CITY JOURNAL, "is proved by the fact that this state has already spent, or planned to spend, approximately $15,000,000 to provite proper and adequate New Jersey approaches. In anticipating with genuine optimism the good results that will accrue from the execution of the project, the hope of gains of both states will be mingled with deep appreciation of the genius, skill, and patience that planned and directed such a stupendous structure, conquered engineering and financial obstacles and surmounted every difficulty."

Calling the structure "one of the engineering feats and marvels of the century," the ALLENTOWN MORNING CALL observes: "This bridge is expected to last more than a hundred years at least. It should serve many generations of people and pay for itself in tolls in probably eighteen to twenty years. That has been the experience of the Hudson Tunnels and of the Philadelphia-Camden bridge. It ought to prove the experience of this newest bridge which will reduce time and distance for millions of people."

"The last quarter of a century has been an era of bridge building," says the PHILADELPHIA PUBLIC LEDGER. "The longest cantilever bridge, at Quebec, was built in 1917; the four major suspension bridges of the world have been built since 1924; the greatest steel arch spans have been built since 1917; all the major truss bridges have been built since 1906; the only really notable draw spans have been built since 1913. And with each new bridge the engineers have discovered new secrets. Now those who designed and constructed the George Washington Bridge say principles which they have worked out in its construction will make it possible to build a suspension bridge three times as long as this masterpiece, or nearly two miles from pier to pier."

Credit for the structure is given by the PROVIDENCE JOURNAL to "a fascinating system of labor saving devices, without which this new Hudson river wonder would have been impossible." The SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE, believing that the Golden Gate Bridge will "surpass the New York colossus in length of span and the San Francisco-Alameda County Bridge in the matter of engineering magnitude," offers the comparisons: "The George Washington's central span is 3500 feet, almost twice the length of any previous suspension span. The Golden Gate Bridge's suspension will be 4200 feet. Comparison between the George Washington and San Francisco's bay bridge must as yet be tentative. One item, however, is suggested by the $60,000,000 cost of the Hudson river structure. The preliminary estimates put the cost of the bay bridge at $72,000,000. Four and a half years were required for the construction of the George Washington bridge. Four years is the outside estimate on the time for building either of San Francisco's bridges. *The George Washington, the Golden Gate and the San Francisco--Alameda County bridges will make a great triumvirate which seem destined to rule the bridge world for some time to come."

HELP HIM OVER THE BUMPS

There may be someone in your department who strives to do as perfect work as possible but who makes errors in his work in spite of everything.

That person may desire to turn out an unusually large quantity of work.

Feverish, but not well-directed, efforts are made—hence mistakes.

It may be vital to this person to make good, and he wants to qualify.

You are conversant with his job in all its details. Why don't you give him the benefit of your experience.

Why permit him to struggle along till he is discharged?

If you are the boss of a department, it might pay you to be a bit lenient with the employee who is new and trying to do the right thing.

He may be competent but nervousness interferes with his efforts.

A few kind, helpful words would go a long way to bring him composure, and incidentally might enable him to become a valuable employee.

An energetic person should be given every possible encouragement.

Allowing a new employee to struggle along without any help is unfair.

He cannot do justice to himself or his employer.

Why stand aloof from the new person who comes into your department?

He is another human being who is trying to get along and he may have had a hard time.

It is hoped that the meeting will be one in which the girls may look ahead into the future: that their purpose as Girl Reserves will be strengthened by coming together as one large club with common ideals and aims.

There are about 290,280 Girl Reserves in the United States. By far the greatest number of Reserves are students in grade, junior and senior high schools. It is interesting to note however that 2,097 are in continuation schools and of the total number there are 26,077 colored girls.

CARS COLLIDE ON PERRY HIGHWAY AT HARLANSBURG

mother and son had been at Meadville and were driving south on the Perry Highway in a roadster, with the son at the wheel.

Mr. and Mrs. Swiderski had been to Oil City and the husband was driving to Youngstown on the Harlansburg road in a roadster.

State Highway Patrolmen from the local sub station and Coroner J. P. Caldwell were today investigating the mishap which took place at the perilous intersection, becoming noted for the number of accidents that occur there.

Stories Differ

Swiderski told Coroner Caldwell that he saw the stop sign, stopped, threw his machine into second gear and started across when the other machine hit him.

Clovis Ducray, whose mother died in the accident, declared that he did not see any car and was not travelling very fast. He said he had the right of way and the other car hit his machine from the left.

Statements of the drivers are controversial and are being investigated by the coroner and the Highway Patrol.

Mrs. Ducray died this morning at 8:45 o'clock from a complication of injuries. She was the wife of G. L. Ducray of McDonald, Pa.

When Pvts. W. E. Stoops and M. P. Sarko of the local patrol sub station arrived at the scene of the accident yesterday the machine, wrecked in the crash, had been removed, they report. A search was begun for witnesses and the patrolmen started an investigation.

Arthur Burnett, 201 Winter avenue, New Castle, is reported to have been a witness to the accident, and will be questioned by the authorities.

Red Cross Aid Helps Veterans Gain Incomes

Approximately $3,000 Monthly Is Secured Through Help Of Chapter

Approximately $3,000 per month has been added to the incomes of world war veterans in the city of New Castle and immediately adjacent territory during the past year, it was found today by Secretary Orville Potter of the Lawrence County Chapter, American Red Cross, after a review of his files.

Since the new law became applicable a year ago, permitting world war veterans, who could not trace their disability to war causes, to secure a disability allowance, approximately 200 such claims have been approved for an average amount of $15.

In addition, many veterans who were totally disabled and were receiving an insufficient income on which to live, have had their compensation increased.

Disabled world war veterans residing in New Castle have an income of $6,000 or more per month, the greater part of which has been secured for them through the interests of the Red Cross Chapter here, which has acted as their intermediary with the government.

The Chapter will soon inaugurate their annual roll call for funds, and citizens of the county are asked to bear in mind the necessary work that they are carrying on here among the ex-service men, in addition to providing free nursing service for those unable to pay, conducting first aid and life saving instruction, and many other duties.

Three mighty good reasons!

"MILDER"—smoke as many as you like! That's what every Chesterfield smoker knows...and it's not hard to prove, either. Just try this blend of milder, riper tobaccos!

"TASTE BETTER"—you'll like as many as you smoke! That's what more smokers are learning every day. Not over-sweetened, but just sweet enough for constant enjoyment. The mild, rich flavor of the finest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos.

"THEY SATISFY"—in every way! The tobacco, the paper, the package...everything about Chesterfield is the best that money can buy or that science knows about!

GOOD...they've got to be good!

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ASWELL

By Central Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.— Exit the jazz age, enter the razz age. The Bronx cheer, practiced to excess, is ruining the national throat and causing coughs by the carload. When you ask the waiter for raspberries and cream he begins to boo and expects a tip for it.

In New York, particularly, the mood of the moment is symbolized by a long, quavering moo of diversion. Everybody knows that a baseball crowd in Philadelphia hooted when Hoover hove in sight. And many remember the heavy hiss which sizzled out over the Yankee Stadium last Saturday when Mayor Walker arrived. It is common knowledge that the only magazine to start up in these doubtful times and achieve overnight acclaim did it with a ballyhoo.

Earl Sperling, one of the better local interviewers, is getting professors to testify that all this commotion in the gallery whenever a big name appears in due to an inferiority complex. But inferiority complexes have explained everything now except why New Yorkers are the strange and unique lot they are—fascinated by a subway excavation or a show-window ticket, but bored by fires and earthquakes. Inferiority complexes will never explain New Yorkers, I suspect, nor the exhilarating paean of deflation which had its origin in the Bronx (so they say).

My own guess is that the raspberries are rendered only to make a noise, quite good naturedly. Kids discover that if they hum while twiddling their lower lips, an arresting and outrageous sound results. So they hum and twiddle joyously. Thus the Bronx cheering sections, composed of children of all ages.

SHOW BUSINESS

A season of incredible thinness in the theater gives show folk plenty of time to sit around and reminisce. The death of Lincoln Wagenhals not long ago brought up a tide of Broadway recollections for those who have watched the street and its characters.

Wagenhals, of the famous firm of Wagenhals and Kemper, got his start by renting the Astor theater from "Bim the Button Man." "Bim" nee Bimberg—had made a fortune selling campaign buttons for coat lapels. He cut the rent of the Astor in half for the young producers. The play—"Paid in Full" paid in full and made Wagenhals and Kemper millionaires. Bim advised: "Now quit, boys, while the quitting's good. You'll lose your shirts if you try to repeat." But they put on "The Bat," by Avery Hopwood and Mary Rinehart, and cleaned up again. Later, after several flops, they retired.

MARATHON DRAMA

Another thing that's keeping New Yorkers feverish these nights is talk about the new Eugene O'Neill play, which openend Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock and ran until 11. This night watchman's picnic, called "Mourning Becames Electra", affords time out at the half for a sandwich lunch only.

"Three plays for the price of one!" the ads shout, while patrons load their pockets with safety razors if their beards grow swiftly. Before setting out for the theater, playgoers must stop the milk and the morning paper. Coming from the theater at the final curtain, they are heard to remark on new skyscrapers which have gone up since Act 1, and children under sixteen may have trouble with the probation officers for missing so much time from school.

One critic has explained the extraordinary length of the play thus: "The author kills off so many characters in the early stages he has to allow time for a new crop of actors to grow up."

JUST FOR FUN

The other night I was witnessing the rehearsal of a new musical show. The producer, one of the most dignified young men in New York, sat in the center of the empty theater while the cast went through their lines. They were good lines. It was a good show. But throughout the rehearsal the producer kept the air hideous with a series of hoots, catcalls, hisses and Bronz cheers.

Finally the stage manager went out and asked him in the name of peace what the matter was. He'd never been so critical before.

"Oh, the show's all right," he replied, gaily, "but listen.' And he proceeded to let out a prize specimen of the uptown inverted applause. The hoot ricocheted neatly from the domed center of the theater and echoed back surprisingly. It was a good trick. The stage director sat down beside him and the two of them continued to annoy the cast for the rest of the performance, at intervals.

Two Hundred At Open Meeting

Judge O'Donnell Speaks At Eagles' Session Monday Night

BOXING MATCHES FEATURE PROGRAM

More than two hundred men, both members and non-members, last night attended the open meetitng held at the home of New Castle Aerie No. 455, Fraternal Order of Eagles, corner of South Jefferson and South streets, and were thrilled and impressed by the messages of Judge Thomas E. O'Donnell of Kansas City, Mo., representative of the Grand Aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles and Charles Guenther of Pittsburgh, past grand worthy president of the order.

While the remarks of both had to do with fraternalism, especially as it refers to the Fraternal Order of Eagles, the address of Judge O'Donnell was of more than ordinary interest due to the fact that it dealt to a great extent on the causes of the present depression and the means of combatting the same, which the Fraternal Order of Eagles is advocating.

The evening was brought to a close with four boxing exhibitions, which proved of interest to the assembled group of men. Daniel V. Cunningham, worthy president of New Castle Aerie No. 455, presided at the meeting. During the earlier part of the evening and in between the speakers and following them, Messrs. George Anthony and Harry Evans, two of the city's best known vocalists, rendered a number of solos, with Clifford James presiding at the piano as accompanist. This feature of the program was received with marked enthusiasm by the crowd.

Charles Guenther of Pittsburgh, past grand worthy president, was the first speaker of the evening and made some inspiring and instructive remarks concerning fraternalism, especially as it is carried out in the Fraternal Order of Eagles. In the course of his remarks, he called attention to the things that the order has stood for, such as workmen's compensation, Old Age Pension, Mother's pensions and numerous things of like nature and also to the new proposition of the order through which it is hoped that there may be a stabilization of employment.

O'Donnell Speaks

Thomas E. O'Donnell as the principal speaker of the evening and one who has been heard here on frequent occasions, outdid all his former efforts as an orator last night and his listeners were thrilled by his remarks.

The principal cause of the present depression here, according to Mr. O'Donnell is the fact that we are living in a machine age and mass production and with machinery has reached such a point, that there is no work for many of the men of the country. His address had to do with this situation and what the Eagles hope to accomplish in order to overcome the present depression and prevent similar occurrences in years to come.

Mr. O'Donnell said among other things, "Most of us have had enough of this depression. And of any and all future depressions. At the same time, most of us believe that our government can put an end to these periods of economic misery.

"The Fraternal Order of Eagles believes that, so firmly, that it is fighting to insure to the honest workingman, the right to a continuous job at a saving wage.

"Our plan is embodied in a bill—The Eagles Bill—presented to congress at the last session and to be presented again this year. This bill provides for the establishment of a permanent and continuous national commission to be known as the Federal Industrial Commission. The Commission's work will be to plan ahead, to think ahead, for business in this country; to study out plans whereby the amount of goods produced can be adjusted to the amount of goods consumed. The man power and resources of the order are pledged to the support of this bill."

Boxing Exhibition

Concluding feature of the evening's program were four exhibition boxing bouts by boxers from the various boxing stables of the city. George Perotta acted as referee and Chauncey Davis was timer. Each exhibition consisted of three rounds of two minutes each.

The contestants were Rudy Camp of the Frankie Ross Stable and Budd Fisher of the Jimmy Dime stable; Tony Geno of the Ross stable and Billy Joyce of the Dime stable; Billy Dunko and Eddie Flick, both of the Letera stable; and Elmo Clark, otherwise known as "Elmo The Mighty" and George Brown of Charleroi, who appeared under the supervision of Smith & Dygert.

All the contests were good, but the last one in which Elmo The Mighty staged a comeback, furnished the crowd with the most enthusiasm and fun.

Dismissed Employe Of Gas Company Turns Off Main Gas Line To City

(International News Service)

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Nov. 3.—The entire city of Hagerstown went breakfastless today.

It all came about because Benjamin F. Gift, dismissed by the Hagerstown Light and Heat Company several months ago, turned off the main gas line of the city this morning.

Officials of the Gas Company notified all residents in the city that the gas had been turned off. Explosions undoubtedly would have occurred, officials said, had the gas been turned back into the mains immediately after the discovery because pilot lights on gas stoves had been put out when the gas first was turned off.

Gift was taken into custody soon after service was restored.

Proposals Offered For Business Aid By Rail Magnates

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Two far-reaching proposals for business progress were advanced Monday by outstanding business leaders before the La Follette senate committee, which is conducting a study of economic planning.

Daniel Willard, president of the B. & O. railroad, advocated that the interstate commerce commission permit the railroads, in time of prosperity, to retain their excess profits in order to build up sufficient reserve so that they can continue their normal operation and maintenance in times of depression.

If the railroads had been allowed to accumulate such reserves before the 1929 crash, Willard said, they would today be able to employ 25 per cent more workers.

National Conference.

Henry P. Kendall of Boston, president of the Kendall Co., and a member of the Massachusetts state economic planning committee, testified that President Hoover should summon a national conference of the 12 basic industries to formulate measures for unemployment and business continuity.

"We are in what amounts to a state of war," Kendall said. "If industry does not take care of its increased responsibility to labor, then it will be done for industry. I prefer that industry do this on its own responsibility. But so far, industry has not given evidence of such leadership."

Kendall advocated the proposed Wisconsin plan, under which corporations and businesses would build up unemployment reserves which would be administered by the state.

Willard declared the railroads ever a period of many years have been striving to stabilize the continuity of their business and employment. But under the present laws they are unable to do so, he said, because their excess profits must go into a government fund for the support of weaker carriers. If these higher earnings in prosperous times could be laid aside for reserves for slack periods, he said, the railroads could better regularize their methods of management.

Drastic Economies.

In order to make even two per cent earning this year, Willard testified the B. & O. has had to institute the most drastic economies.

Willard declined to comment on the proposal of his workers that they would voluntarily accept a 10 per cent wage cut. This was a matter between the road and the railway men, he said.

Kendall told the committee that his organization through long range planning has been able to maintain employment unbrokenly, despite the depression. He expressed the view that industry through similar means could also master the problem. Over expansion and low standards of business management were the basic causes for the economic slump.

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 3.—The New Castle Chamber of Commerce has been asked by the National Chamber to vote on two referenda carrying proposals for business and employment stabilization. The referenda were reported by committees of the national organization.

The report of the natural resources committee proposes relief in emergencies for the natural resource industries, such as coal, oil and lumber, by setting up a government tribunal which would permit agreements for curtailment of production when in the public interest.

The proposals to be voted upon in connection with the report of the committee on continuity of business and employment, 10 in number, recommend among other things, a "softening of the anti-trust laws. The committee also proposes establishment of a national economic council, the functioning in each field of business of a trade association as an economic council, and systematic planning by employers so as to provide adequate reserves for unemployment and other benefits of their employees.

What's become of the "Superfluous Woman"?

THESE were the women that the census taker used to put down as "Females without Occupation." You know. Women with grown-up families. And the familiar aunt relatives that had to be supported by some other member of the family.

What's become of these so-called "superfluous women"? Health has everything to do with it. Just talk to women who've been successful along their own particular lines. They'll all tell you they take Nujol.

"I learned that good habit from our school doctor," you'll be told. "She advised all the girls to take it, especially whenever we had to cut down on our regular exercise. You know how headachy and dull you're apt to feel. Well, you'd be surprised to see what a difference it makes if you take some Nujol for a few days beforehand."

No harm trying. For Nujol can't possibly upset you, even when you're below par. It contains absolutely no medicine or drugs. Perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 2 Park Ave., New York. When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

For coughs due to colds, the best remedy that money could buy can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Continue Effort To Reach Agreement On Firemen's Benefit Fund

As the result of a three way conference of city council, and representatives of the New Castle Firemen's Relief Association and the Paid Firemen's Beneficial Association, Monday afternoon in city hall, Attorneys Wylie McCaslin and Charles Matthews were asked to get together in an effort to come to an agreement as to who should get New Castle's share of the foreign fire insurance premium paid by the state.

The question has been hanging fire for some time. For many years the money has been paid to the New Castle Firemen's Relief Association, but the Act of 1929 raises a doubt in the councilmanic minds as to whether it should be paid to that organization or to the paid men's organization. The money has been held up for two years, with both organizations claiming it.

Relief Association

Opening the meeting the City Clerk read the statement of J. Lee McFate, president of the Firemen's Relief Association before council on October 30 in which he said that the organization had been chartered by the court, recognized by council in 1898, paid benefits to volunteer and paid firemen alike, and for that reason was the one organization entitled to the money now held by the city.

Attorney Charles Matthews, representing the Paid Firemen's Beneficial Association, said that under the act of 1929, council may decide where the money shall go. He agreed that the Firemen's Relief Association had been organized in 1897 or 1898. In 1921 he said an ordinance had been passed which would create a joint fund to be available for both police and firemen. This scheme was found impractical.

The Paid Firemen's Beneficial Association has been organized 25 years Mr. Matthews said, although it had never been chartered. All but two of the paid firemen of the city are members of it. Each member contributes so much per month, there is a sick and accident benefit and a burial benefit accruing.

Change In Plan

Mr. Matthews agreed that there was a time when the volunteers were an important factor in fire fighting. With the advent of an entirely paid fire department, the need for volunteers disappeared and paid men took up the task. Few volunteers now attend fires he said, and yet members are paid the same benefits as a paid fireman.

"Future legislation may force council to establish a pension fund for firemen" said Mr. Matthews, "and we believe this money should go to such use. We are not asking for the entire moneys given to the city by the state. If we can be given the money now being held by council, approximately $35,000, and divide the future amounts 50-50 between the volunteer and paid organizations, we will be satisfied."

Mr. Matthews then presented a formal proposition to city council, contingent upon the Paid Firemen's Beneficial Association receiving the money now being held by council and fifty per cent of all future moneys.

The proposition is this: Provide a pension fund for all paid firemen without a cent of expense to the taxpayers.

Appoint a Pension Board to consist of the Director of Public Safety, Chief of the Fire Department, and one member from each department.

Pension paid firemen at the following scale.

Twenty years service and age 55. $50 per month.

Twenty years service and 60 years of age. $60 per month.

Twenty years service and 65 years of age. $65 per month.

Any member incapacitated because of service to be retired as of age 55, and to be at that rate of pension until he reaches 60, then to be increased.

Argument Over Facts

Several arguments ensued between representatives of the two sides in the case. George Harper, Norman Minner, Dick McIlwain and several other firemen challenged the statements of J. Lee McFate that every paid man received benefits from the Firemen's Relief Association.

They argued that certain firemen had not been paid, but McFate reiterated his statement and said that while men who were on salary from the city during injuries were not paid benefits, that they were paid when their salary stopped, and that the widows of every deceased paid fireman had been paid.

The discussion occupied about 90 minutes times and finally Councilman Treser suggested that the attorneys for each side get together and come to some agreement. This will be done and the result of the conference reported back to council.

Christian Endeavor Societies Of County To Meet At Plaingrove

Annual fall rally of the Christian Endeavor Societies of Lawrence county will be held on Thursday at the Plaingrove Presbyterian church. Quite a large delegation from the city churches will leave at 5:30 as the rally opens at 6 p. m. with a banquet.

Warren C. Hoopes, state secretary of the Christian Endeavor Society, will be the principal speaker. Rev. Rees T. Williams, pastor of the First Congregational church, the ministerial adviser of the Lawrence County Christian Endeavor Union will make the introductory address.

There is quite a lot of enthusiasm apparent as to which of the several societies will capture the prize shield for the ensuing term.

There is every indication that this will be an enthusiastic gathering and largely attended by the young people belonging to the societies in various churches of the county.

NEW CASTLE BOYS MISBEHAVE AT MERCER

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Nov. 3.—Three boys from New Castle evidently forgot that Hallowe'en was over Monday night when they started out on an auto ride which took them to Mercer.

A little west of Mercer it is charged that they stopped at the home of Dan Adams and got quite boisterous, making things most unpleasant for Mr. Adams, who called the state police. The young men, Dewey Rinamon, his brother, Clyde, and Henry Cratty, wer taken into Mercer and arraigned before Alderman Thomas McClain, where they were fined $10 and costs.

MEANEST OF SNEAK THIEVES REPORTED

A group of local hunters who were spending the day hunting the elusive bunny in and about Nashua, were the victims Monday of the meanest sneak thieves. These hunters, William Samuels, Clarence Samuels, Joseph Samuels, Harry Hergenrother and Harry Dupuy, had parked their car along the road and locked the door.

In the car were nine rabbits, a sack that had been provided to take the game home and the lunch of the men. When the members of the party returned, the rabbits, bag and even their lunch had been taken. The thief had used a key in getting into the car.

Soviet Russia increases its cotton acreage from 3,750,000 to $5,000,000—but one must bear in mind that the Soviets can cut their acreage whenever they choose.—The San Antonio Express.

From Broom to Autogyro

Is it possible that witches have deserted their time-honored broom sticks for autogyro planes as a means of locomotion through the hazy skies of this eerie time of the year? This picture looks like it, anyway. A Hallowe'en costume party was in progress at Wood School, Langborne, Pa., when this autogyro, piloted by Norman Smith, landed in the backyard. Chief Caupolican, Indian opera singer, who was a passenger, entertained the assortment of costumed girls with his voice.

Pacific Aspirant

A transpacific flight, next May or June, is being planned by Juanita Burns, above. She expects to take off from Tokio, Japan, with Seattle as her goal. She is shown at New York as she outlined plans for her flight.

Princeton Frosh Like Rich Girls Who "Neck"

Composite of Preferred Feminine Charmers Represents Greta Garbo, Marlene Dietrich and Joan Crawford.

According to answers received to the annual questionnaire submitted to freshmen at Princeton University, the average first-year man would rather be the possessor of a Phi Betta Kappa than a varsity letter for sports. For his ideal girl, the freshman requires brains, beauty, personality, a sense of humor and lots of money. The ability to neck (verb) and a close resemblance to Greta Garbo, Marlene Dietrich and Joan Crawford are also named as necessities. Top left picture shows what a composite of the three film queens mentioned would look like. Cartoon at bottom shows the freshman in his element, but looking none too happy.

"By the Gun's Red Glare"

The blinding flash of light that precedes the thunderous clap which marks the firing of one of the big guns aboard a battleship of Uncle Sam's Pacific fleet is the only light the photographer needed to get this dramatic picture. The scene was snapped during recent battle practice off the Pacific Coast. Only a moment before the deck of the warship was shrouded in darkness. It was made as light as day for an instant when flames and smoke belched from the yawning mouth of the big gun.

Born Blind; Wins Sight

Nine-year-old Edna Goddard (left) thinks that this old world of ours is quite a beautiful place. All the sights commonplace to most people are fascinating to Edna as she drinks them in with the eyes that until just recently were sightless since birth. In total darkness for nine years, Edna won sight when Dr. Leo Covert (right) lifted the bandages from her eyes at her home in Bellaire, Ohio.

Famous Notre Dame on Fire?

An interesting display of fire-extinguishing methods was worked so realistically in Paris the other day that many persons thought the famous Notre Dame Cathedral was afire. This picture carries out such an impression as the powerful cascades of water partially veil the historic old building. A portion of the huge crowds which viewed the fire-fighting demonstration can be seen in the foreground.

Japanese War Lords Honor Victims

Headed by War Minister General Jiro Minami (left), the general staff of the Japanese War Ministry assembled to pay public tribute to the memory of Japanese soldiers who were killed during the outburst of Sino-Japanese hostilities in Manchuria. At the right are Shinto priests conducting the ceremonies, which were held in Tokyo. Scenes similar to this, enacted daily, help to intensify anti-Chinese feeling.

British Government 'Family' Affair

With the Exception of Stanley Baldwin, Whose Son Lost as Conservatives Rose to Power, Three Political Leaders of England Have Children Following in Their Steps in Important Government Roles.

The Government of Great Britain might be construed to be a "family" affair, what with two of the leading lights having sons and one daughter in prominent roles as law-makers and another young man a power to be reckoned with, even though he was defeated by the very avalanche which gave his father and his party increased power. Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister, has an able supporter in the House of Commons in his 30-year-old son, Malcolm. David Lloyd George, famous wartime Premier, has double ammunition in Parliament as support for himself and his Liberal party in his daughter, Megan, and his son, Major Gwilym. Of the three outstanding leaders in British politics, i. e., MacDonald, Baldwin and Lloyd George, Stanley Baldwin is the only one who does not now have a member of his family in Parliament. His Socialist son, Oliver, was ousted from the House of Commons in the very election which returned Baldwin and his Conservative party to the heights.

Tenants of this apartment are to be given a $212,000 joy ride at the expense of the city of Cleveland. The building is to be moved to an adjoining parcel to make room for a street extension to lighten traffic on other main arteries. While the structure is being moved tenants will be supplied with electricity, gas and water. Some years ago the lot was offered the city for a nominal sum.

The First Lady of the Land, recent guest of Goucher College, Baltimore, was escorted about the campus by the two intellectuals of the school, Virginia Woolverton (left) and Margaret Carnwath (right). Democrats Swinging To Roosevelt And Ritchie As Presidency Choices

Ex-Governor Al Smith's Criticism Of Roosevelt Considered Untimely

Eastern Democrats Do Not Favor Roosevelt— . . Ritchie On Tour

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Beneath the placid surface of the Democratic presidential pool developments are beginning to shape themselves which show the direction of the prevailing wind.

In the order of their importance, these developments might be listed as:

(1) Ex-Gov. Al Smith's open criticism of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, considered the leading presidential possibility at this time.

(2) Gov. Albert C. Ritchie's speaking tour of New England, marking the first bit of open campaigning indulged in by any of the Democratic possibilities.

(3) The visit to New York this week of Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago, accompanied by other Illinois leaders, for conferences with powerful eastern leaders, among whom is Al Smith.

These developments, seemingly unrelated, are actually linked closely together in the minds of practical politicians here, who are watching events with close attention.

Pick Ritchie

It is more or less an open secret that those Democratic elements which do not look with favor upon Gov. Roosevelt's nomination have been casting around for some time for a candidate to act as the spearhead of the movement to "Stop Roosevelt." They believe they have found their man in Maryland's four-time governor. His rather extensive tour of New England, just concluded, was designed to give him the opportunity to see and be seen by the party rank and file in the important industrial states of the northeast.

The Roosevelt candidacy has been progressing at a pace which has been extremely disconcerting to his opponents. Nearly every southern state is planning to send a Roosevelt delegation to the convention next June. In the far west the Roosevelt movement has attained considerable headway. In the middle west important progress has been made.

Against Roosevelt

Important party influences in the east frankly do not want to see Gov. Roosevelt nominated. They do not like his advanced views on the power issue, nor do they consider him positive enough in his opposition to prohibition.

Significantly enough, one of Mayor Cermak's first questions upon reaching New York concerned Gov. Roosevelt's attitude on prohibition.

"Is he wet enough?" asked Mayor Cermak, bluntly.

The Illinois leader, who has attained a control over his party reminiscent of Roger Sullivan in his prime, declared that "only a man of the Al Smith type" can carry Illinois next year, or be elected.

The strategy of the Roosevelt opposition is to build up favorite son strength in as many states as possible, in order to prevent a quick nomination, and to afford time for convention conferences.

No Favorite Sons

The New England States have no favorite sons. Generally, they will be inclined to "go along" with Gov. Smith in anything he proposes.

If these important New England votes could be held for Ritchie it would serve the same purpose, for the Maryland Governor already has sufficient scattered strength to make a respectable showing. The nucleus of his strength, of course, is his own Maryland. But he has additional strength not yet disclosed. Some of it is in Illinois.

As the candidate next in actual strength to Roosevelt, even though the gap between them is wide, there is reason to believe that the anti-Roosevelt elements have centered upon Maryland's governor as the best agency to "Stop Roosevelt." Subsequent developments probably will bear this out.

Fewer Christmas Trees To Be Cut

TRURO, Nova Scotia, Nov. 3.—Orders for Christmas trees to supply the American trade this year are far below normal.

"Even the rural American districts will have fewer Christmas trees this year than usual," said W. H. Clark of New York, who is here to supervise the annual cut of fir trees for his firm. Be blamed unemployment.

Clark was the first in the field this year, but half a dozen other firms are expected to begin cutting and contracting for Christmas trees before the week is cut.

Scientific Process Adds Life To Furs

Few People Realize How Furs Are Cleaned And What Benefit Is Derived From The Cleaning Process

In Smith's modern dry cleaning plant, your furs are cleaned in a purified and distilled solvent with a paraffine base. This particular solvent, in addition to removing the dirt that has collected in your furs, restores the natural oil that has become oxidized through exposure to air. Air naturally dries up the oil in your furs, and through Smith's scientific process, this oil is again restored which adds new life and appearance to any fur.

Special furrier's equipment is used in Smith's plant in cleaning your finest furs and fur-trimmed coats.

Investigate your cleaner before you send out your cleaning. Smith's, New Castle's Largest Cleaners and Dyers, will welcome an opportunity to serve you, assuring you of the finest quality in dry cleaning service. Prices have been materially reduced due to improved equipment.

The management of Smith's Cleaners and Dyers extends an invitation to anyone to visit their plant in operation. It will greatly increase your knowledge as to how garments and furs are cleaned in a modern plant today.

Insull Sees Sign Of Business Gain

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Consumption of electricity in 5,000 communities served by the Middle West Utilities system is running 6.3 per cent ahead of last year, without including companies acquired during the year, Martin J. Insull, president, announced. An analysis of the reports, he said, leads to the belief that the first evidences of business revival are to be found in the medium-sized and smaller manufacturing centers.

Worrying about- Blood Pressure?

At the first sign of danger, take a laxative. Cut down on alcohol, coffee and tobacco. Eat lightly for several days. Take a tablespoonful of mentha pepsin before meals to make digestion as easy as possible. Keep quiet until your stomach is settled and the dizzy spells have passed.

Have your physician check your blood pressure at frequent intervals. Continue to protect yourself by taking mentha pepsin before every meal. (You can get Dare's Mentha Pepsin from Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc. or any reliable druggist). Avoid heavy food and too heavy meals—especially at night.

Do this faithfully and the chances are that you will prevent—or at least postpone—the danger of a stroke.

Urges Hoover Name Coal Commission To Stabilize Industry

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Appointment by the President of a national coal commission was advocated here Monday by Howard W. Showalter, president of the Continental Coal Company, as the best means of stabilizing the coal industry.

"Such a commission," he said in an interview with an International News Service representative, "Could effectively act as arbitrator between labor organizations and organizations of coal operators.

"Creation of such a government commission would, I believe, encourage the operators to recognize union labor and also to cooperate with each other through district operators associations.

"So long as individual operators desire to run their business independent of their neighbors and of associated organizations—as some do now—just so long will the coal industry remain in a chaotic condition.

Friendly Relations

"Another way in which the government could be of great assistance not only to the coal industry, but to every industry and to every producer, would be to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment. This would result in employment of much labor, the consumption of much coal and the utilization of great quantities of farm products."

Schowalter expressed belief that friendly relations between mine owners and miners unions are attainable and must be reached before the necessary curtailment of production in the coal fields can be effected.

"The United Mine Workers of America," he said, "Talk along sound and sane principles today and have an actual spirit of cooperation with the operators. The National Miners' Union, on the other hand, is a communistic organization from all the information we can obtain about it."

Blood Test Is Popular With Laity

Dr. Clendening Cites History Of Medical Procedure

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Probably no medical test ever adopted has been so widely discussed by the laity as blood pressure. Nearly everybody over thirty knows what his or her blood pressure is, and is elated or depressed as a result. There is probably no equally popular subject except the gold standard and the stock market, about which so many totally erroneous ideas are held.

It may clarify matters to remember some thing of the history of the procedure. The first blood pressure determinations were made in the laboratories of physiology. Strictly speaking the first was made in a farm yard on a mare by a minister of the gospel—the Rev. Stephen Hales. This was over a hundred years ago, but very little attention was paid to his reports. Some 75 years ago, however, physiologists began to determine blood pressure readings with instruments not unlike the ones we have now. Their work was mostly done on animals.

It was not until about the beginning of the present century that the instruments were perfected so that they could be used conveniently on human beings. And it was only about 20 years ago that the custom of taking blood pressure readings became a familiar routine.

The method consists in wrapping a collopsible rubber bag around the arm. This bag is connected by two rubber tubes, first to a bulb by which it can be distended or collapsed, and second to a gauge which will measure the amount of pressure in the bag. The gauge may be either a mercury column or a metal spring.

To obtain the blood pressure after the bag is in place on the arm it is blown up by the bulb until it obliterates the pulse at the wrist. The air is then let out of the bag until the pulse can just barely be felt. This point obviously indicates the amount of pressure the heart exerts to keep the blood circulating in the blood vessels—in other words, the blood pressure. What it is can be seen by reading the pressure recored on the mercury column or the diel attached to the armband.

The blood pressure, of course, varies in the different phases of the heart cycle. When the heart is contracting, the beat—systole—of the heart muscle causes the pressure in the vessels to rise. When the heart relaxes, the pressure falls somewhat. These two phases are called, after the names of the contracting and relaxing periods of the heart beat, the systolic and diastolic pressures. They can be determined by signs elicited while listening over the arteries of the arm below the blood pesssure armband.

In studying many thousand people it was found that there was some difference in blood pressure between different individuals. The greatest difference was caused by age. The blood pressure constantly rises as age advances. It does this in everybody. There is not one single exception. Therefore do not get frightened if you are told that your blood pressure is higher than that of a friend 20 years younger than yourself. The pressure is measured in the height of the column of mercury and in general it should be about a hundred plus your age—if you are 50 years old it should be 150, for instance.

But even more important is it to remember that it varies enormously in different persons. I have known many worthy people scared out of their wits by being told they had a high blood pressure, yet in spite of that to live on and on far beyond their allotted time.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding." "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

GUARDIAN DIRECTED TO SETTLE CLAIM

In the estate of Elizabeth Hebbley, a weak-minded person, in which Dr. Mildred Rodgers is guardian, the guardian was authorized by Judge Chambers Monday to pay a claim of Morris Newmark for $120, with interest at six per cent from February 10th, 1927.

TEXAS GETS "WEST POINT OF AIR"

Known as "the West Point of the air," the new Randolph Field, 16 miles northeast of San Antonio, stretches out like a model city. The administration building is the only tall structure.

'Four Hundred' Figures

Social Leaders Of New York And Nation As Seen By Ethelda Bedford, New Castle News Staff Writer

MRS. WILLIAM P. WEAR

By ETHELDA BEDFORD

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—When you know that Mrs. William P. Wear is the granddaughter of a one-time president of the Pennsylvania railroad it goes without saying that this young woman has practically been cradled in great wealth. And, too, she has certainly enjoyed the bliss of social approval, being of a family well rooted in the best soil of New York and Baltimore.

As the much-sought-after Doris L. Stewart, she enjoyed a brilliant debutante period before her marriage to Mr. Wear.

Conservative in Dress

Slim, dark, with soft wavy hair much the color and texture of sable, she has an olive complexion and wears browns and blues quite well. She dresses, for the most part, conservatively.

Mrs. Wear uses very little make-up, and has unusual poise. She is not what you'd call aggressive either in manner or speech. Hers is not an animated beauty—more a poised, confident sincerity which wears better than perhaps an animated, colorful one.

Her hobby is horseback riding, and she owns several mounts. "American Navy," blue ribbon winner last year at the Bryn Mawr horse show, is one of her favorites.

She is fond of pets and animals of all kinds.

Mrs. Wear is the daughter of William Plunkett Stewart and the late Mrs. Stewart, who before her marriage was Miss Elsie F. Cassat, daughter of the late Alexander Casset, one-time president of the Pennsylvania railroad.

The Family Tree

Her father, a little more than a year ago, married the widow of R. Penn Smith. On her paternal side she is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. Morton Stewart, and is a niece of Mrs. Edward L. Coster and of Gustav L. Stewart of New York.

MRS. WILLIAM P. WEAR

She is also a niece on her paternal side of Mrs. John McHenry, Mrs. C. L. A. Heiser, Charles Morton Stewart, Redmond Stewart and S. Lurman Stewart, all of whom hold places among the "great" in the east and as far south as Baltimore.

Mrs. Wear is athletically inclined, and it was this mutual interest which did much toward bringing about the romance between her and her husband, who is a member of various sports organizations. He is the son of one of the best-known families—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walker Wear of Penllyn, Pa.

Gotham society holds this couple high in its ranks.

Great Britain And France To Accept Parley

Thirty-Five Nations Send Favorable Replies To Proposal For Arms Conference

(International News Service)

GENEVA, Nov. 3.—Five more powers, including Great Britain and France, Monday notified the League of Nations of their acceptance of the proposal for a one-year armaments holiday.

Thirty-five of the fifty-six nations addressed by the League have now sent favorable replies. Though the League council had set November 1 as a time limit for notification and had hoped to put the disarmament truce into effect this week agreement has been reached to extend the time in the hope that enough powers will acquiesce to permit the holiday to be made effective at least before the disarmament conference meets in February.

With the replies from Great Britain and France acceptances came from Estonia, Lithuania and Poland. Earlier Germany and Rumania had accepted.

REV. SHANNON IS CALLED BY DEATH

(International News Service)

SHARON, Pa., Nov. 3.—Rev. W. S. Shannon, aged 80, retired Presbyterian minister, died at his home in Freedonia, near here, Monday.

Rev. Shannon had served the Freedonia church for many years. His last pastorate before retirement was at Smiths Ferry.

A Word to the Public— A Word to the Wise—

With our present lease about to expire we are obliged to make definite plans for the immediate disposition of our merchandise now on hand. With conditions as they are, we fully realize the importance of low prices to accomplish what we have set out to do. If you will compare the few items we have mentioned on this page you will see that we have done a mighty good job in cutting prices ... if that is what it is being called. This being the only sale of this kind we have ever launched, we are inclined to believe that everyone will appreciate the opportunity offered to save money ... and profit in all that this store-wide event has to offer.

Strong Words May Be Convincing But a Little Goes a Long Ways

There isn't a day that you don't read of some get-rich-quick plan or of some store that will sell a $5 bill for less than half. Such nonsense is misleading and it is for that reason we WARN YOU not to confuse this event with that type of hokum. This is a bonifide program of selling that is backed by the reputation of this store and its policy of doing business. You would be doing yourself a great injustice by saying "Just another sale". Come tomorrow when the doors open and let us show you the difference in this sale. THE DIFFERENCE WILL BE CASH, and it will be in your favor no matter how you look at it.

ELLWOOD HIGH TO MEET NEW BRIGHTON

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 3.—Following its scintilating victory over Monaca high, the Ellwood high grid team set to work seriously Monday afternoon for its hard battle with Coach Roark's eleven of New Brighton high, at New Brighton Saturday which has been playing some fine football. The local team fears the Roark machine more than any other remaining on the schedule.

Ellwood has set itself to win the remaining games and has planned an interesting program for the week that will aid in defeating New Brighton. To date the Roark men have won four games and lost three. They hold victories over Grove City, Aliquippa, Rochester and Beaver, and lost to Midland, Beaver Falls and Butler.

According to this record New Brighton has the upper hand, for they held Beaver Falls and Midland to lower scores than the blue and white. They also hold a victory over Aliquippa, who defeated Ellwood. But on the other hand the local boys took the measure of Butler, while New Brighton lost a 7-6 battle to them two weeks ago.

Local fans are under the impression that if the blue and white maintain the same pace they set last Saturday upon invading New Brighton, they will have no difficulty in disposing of this menace to their desires.

New Brighton has a fine line with Webster and Roth at the wings, Captain Johnny Grimm and McCreary at the tackles, Sayres and Gilen at guards and Brashears at center. Their backfield, composed of Capo, Hardy, Walker and Fideski, will bear watching. The latter is a clever man in the open field and is exceptionally fast.

Most of this week will be spent in perfecting a pass defense that was almost successful last Saturday. Coaches Gills and Lloyd lined their backfield men in groups of fours and had them bat down passes for a while yesterday. Startling improvement was shown. Another session of this type is planned for tonight. Also scrimmages this evening and the following day are on the program. Included daily, of course, will be sessions on the charging machine, calisthenics, signal drill and further instruction on three new plays. All but two of the squad reported for practice yesterday, and these were absent from school. The locals at present are in full strength, having received no other casualties to mar their prospects in defeating New Brighton.

Stone Spring House Memorial Dedicated

Unique Memorial Is Erected To Mother Of Mrs. Harry Etheridge

ZELIENOPLE, Nov. 3,—The stone spring house built on Route 68 between Evans City and Harmony Junction by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Etheridge, in memory of Mrs. Minetta Walsh, mother of Mrs. Etheridge, was dedicated with appropriate services Saturday afternoon. The services were short but very impressive, and were in charge of Rev. C. N. Moore, D. D., pastor of the Presbyterian church of this place.

A large number of friends of the late Mrs. Walsh, also Mr. and Mrs. Etheridge attended the service. About 30 new friends of Mrs. Walsh were guests at the Etheridge at the home on Grandview Avenue from McKeesport, for lunch on Saturday, they arriving at the Etheridge home before noon, enjoying a lunch and from there attending the service. The spring house is a beautiful stone structure, and is useful for the public, to which it was turned over. There are 83 stones in the front of the house, Mrs. Walsh being 83 years old, when she passed away on April 27, 1931 at the Etheridge home here. A pole with a light has been erected also, and a bronze tablet will complete the monument in a short time this not being done at the time of the dedication, on account of workmen not being able to get it completed. Mrs. Walsh made her home with another daughter in McKeesport for many years before coming to the Etheridge home here, where she had a host of friends, many of whom attended the service. The spring has never been known to go dry, and this is built in hopes of an eternal monument to Mrs. Walsh. It is known as "Minetta Springs."

Rev. Moore in his service quoted the piece of poetry, "Let me live by the side of the road," a poem loved by Mrs. Walsh and made very nice remarks in his brief talk. He turned the stone structure over to the public, which was accepted by Attorney W. D. Brandon of Butler with a few well chosen remarks, also. The spring is for the use of the public, and is to be made use of by the public.

Federal Reserve Board Plans Recommendations

Board Assumes Initiative In Proposed Liberalization Of Rediscount Privileges

Experts Have Been Studying Financial Systems Of World For Several Weeks

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.— The Federal Reserve Board will assume the initiative in the proposed liberalization of the Reserve system's rediscount privileges by making definite recommendations to congress, it was reported on high authority today.

Experts of the Reserve Board are said to have been studying the financial systems of the world for several weeks with a view to providing a more elastic system of national finance to bolster banks and speed industry's recovery.

Serious Consideration

Coincident with this development, high officials of the treasury made known that serious consideration is being given to approval of the making of "Lombard Loans" eligible for rediscount. This class of loans, made in England, includes those supported by stocks and bonds.

They are described by Rep. McFadden (R) of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Banking Committee, as being similar to brokers' loans in this country. Treasury experts, it is understood, do not propose to include speculative transactions.

While the reserve board has remained silent on proposed changes, treasury officials indicated they would oppose an increase in the length of the paper eligible for rediscount. The limit now is 90 days on straight commercial paper, with some classes of agricultural paper, running for six and nine months, eligible.

At the present rate, not considering possible increased taxation, the government will have a deficit of probably $2,500,000,000 at the end of the present fiscal year.

Plan Tax Revision

In the four months period total receipts amounted to $703,629,000, a reduction of $256,000,000 as compared with last year. Expenditures since July 1, have totalled $1,389,494, 000, an increase of $239,000,000 over last year.

With the appalling deficit in sight, Secretary Mellon virtually has completed his recommendations for tax revision which will be submitted to President Hoover within ten days. It was anticipated Mellon would not go into details regarding the necessity for increased revenue in his annual report, but that the tax program, if it is decided to submit one, will be transmitted to congress by President Hoover.

In an indefinite way it has been stated at the treasury that a limited sales tax and possibly an increase in surtaxes on big incomes will be suggested.

Income Tax Decreases.

There was no serious falling off in revenue during the first four months of 1931 with the exception of that in income taxes which amounted to $339,121,600, a decrease of $243,000,000 from last year.

Virtually the entire increase in expenditures was due to emergency measures such as the larger building program and agricultural relief.

During the next three months the treasury will be called on to meet maturities of $523,895,000 in 90-day bills, while prior to March 16, certificates totaling about $1,100,000,000 will mature. There will be maturity of $451,781,000 in 3½ per cent bills due Sept. 15, as well.

Planning Production Of Synthetic Rubber

(International News Service)

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 3.—Certain of the commercial value of its newly announced development of synthetic rubber, the E. I. Du Pont De Nemours and company announced today construction of a plant for manufacturing the new product was under way at Deepwater Point, N. J.

Company officials claimed the synthetic rubber would replace natural rubber for many of its present uses, though it had not been developed to the extent where it could be used as substitute for tires and certain other articles.

The new process was reported to use acetylene, salt and water. Acetylene requires for its production only limestone and coal.

F. B. Downing, W. H. Carothers and Ira Williams, all of whom participated in the research work that led up to the development of Synthetic rubber, made the report.

The new product, it was explained, was more resistant than natural rubber to the swelling action of gasoline, kerosine and other solvents which are harmful to rubber. Likewise, it was said it was more resistant also to oxygen, ozone and numerous other chemicals.

The synthetic rubber can be vulcanized by the application of heat alone, without the addition of sulphur, as is necessary for natural rubber vulcanization, the report stated.

Claims were also made for the new synthetic rubber that its X-ray diagram is similar to that of natural rubber, showing it has the same type of molecular structure.

Pinchot To Approve Recodification Of State Banking Laws

Dr. William D. Gordon, State Secretary Of Banking Has Plan

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—A definite plan for recodification of the state banking laws will be presented to the next legislature with the approval of Governor Gifford Pinchot, it was revealed here today by Dr. William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking.

Dr. Gordon pointed out that although the plan cannot cure all financial ills, it will serve to strengthen the banking structures and serve to prevent certain conditions encountered in some of the banks now closed.

The State Banking Department also has ordered statements issued by all banks under its jurisdiction disclosing all loans to officers, directors and firms with which they are connected.

It also was revealed today that banks and trust companies closed in the Philadelphia district since last December were depositories for $2,899,000 in public funds.

A. C. Hoyt Elected Field Club Head For Coming Year

Annual Meeting Of Members Is Held At The Club House Monday Evening

Annual meeting of the members of the New Castle Field Club was held last night at the club house. There was a good attendance of the members and much interest shown in the election and other business before the meeting.

Walter Duff and Thomas W. Dickey, Esq., were re-elected as directors for a term of three years, while R. H. Cunningham was elected as a director for three years for the first time.

Following the election, the directors met and organized for the year, electing A. C. Hoyt as president: Walter Duff as vice president: R. M. Harland as secretary and L. H. Patterson as treasurer.

The annual meeting was followed by a social time, during which cards were the chief diversion and at the close of which a delightful buffet lunch was served.

Extra Police To Handle "Milk War" In Belfast, Ire.

(International News Service)

BELFAST, Nov. 3.—Two hundred extra police were drafted today to deal with the "milk war" which started here when farmers began their attempt to cut off Belfast's milk supply when retailers denied their demands for a higher price for their milk.

Belfast sat down to an almost milkless breakfast today as a result of the strike.

Gangs of "strikers" visited farm houses within a wide radius around the city last night, intimidating farmers so thoroughly that they were afraid to send their milk to the city.

Ship And Air Mail Contract Probe Is To Be Started Soon

Congress Plans To Probe Reports Concerning Charges In Service

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Investigation of ship and airmail contracts awarded by the postoffice department will be started by the house appropriations committee soon after congress convenes, Rep. Will R. Wood (R) of Indiana, chairman, announced today.

The inquiry will cover charges of discrimination and alleged waste of funds in executing the congressional laws for promotion of the merchant marine and airmail.

Under a law enacted by congress last year the postmaster general was given wide powers in sifting the rate for airmail and contracting for space in passenger airplanes.

Many complaints have been lodged with members of congress against the administration of this law. Among the cases expected to be brought before the committee is that of the Ludington line, operating between New York and Washington.

Opportunities to submit airmail bids has been denied this company, it is claimed, because a competing line already has a contract. Complaint also has been made that the competing line, with the aid of a goverment subsidy, has reduced rates in an effort to drive out its competitors.

Rep. Kelly (R) of Pennsylvania, known as "the father of the airmail," has already announced that he would seek a congressional investigation of the airmail situation.

Uniformed Scouts To Share In Memorial To Brady Paul

A New Castle troop of Boy Scouts, the Epworth M. E. Troop 10, will play its part in Thursday afternoon's ceremonies marking the formal dedication of the stone marker erected to honor the memory of the late Brady Paul, state patrolman, shot down by Irene Schroeder and Glenn Dague.

The marker has been placed near the spot on the Butler road where Paul fell.

Scoutmaster C. W. Hicks and the entire Troop 10 membership, donned in khaki uniforms, will be present. They will carry an American flag, the gift which the troop received from Commander J. Glenn Berry, in behalf of the Perry S. Gaston post of the American Legion.

To Present Flag.

During the ceremonies the Scout Troop will officially present the flag to the state highway patrol, to be placed alongside the patrolman's monument.

Through arrangements already made, Troop 10 will become the unofficial custodian of the marker and will place the flag at the marker on holidays and other occasions when Old Glory should fly.

"It is our full intention of glorifying the protectors of law and order in the same way the gangsters have been wrongly glorified," Scout Executive Herbert Horton declared. "Just so soon as we do this, crime will decrease."

THE PARENT PROBLEM

Family Life Good Theme For Sermon

Myers Asks Clergy To Tackle Home Problems

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

Time was when moral and religious leaders took the attitude that Mother Nature was wrong and that all we needed to do to grow righteous was to keep from doing what we wanted to do.

Then about 40 years ago came along a group of psychologists, led off by the brilliant G. Stanley Hall, who glorified the instincts. Came next the Freudians (still fairly active), who proclaimed that if one stood in the way of the appetites of human nature one would be in danger of emotional destruction. In more recent years instancts have been less in vogue and even Freudianism is less fashionable. Human urges are more and more thought of in terms of what has seemed most useful to the race as well as to the individual. Of course, not all agree upon what promises to be useful.

Apparently there is a general agreement, however vague, that human beings are endowed with a few basic urges which, when unrestrained or misdirected, tend to interfere not only with other individuals' rights and happiness, but with the happiness of the individual himself, during his life time.

No matter what particular brand of theology the preacher dispenses, he is concerned with fostering good family life and with promoting happiness of homes and children.

I wish preachers were less general in their dissertations on sins and good conduct. I believe there is a rich field for them to analyze with their parishioners the thousand little things which parents and children and others of the family do, for the most part unawares, which annoy one another and, on the other hand, those specific elements of conduct which further family happiness.

Who can acquire spiritual attitudes while annoyed by another person constantly? One pious parent even may be irritated while the other prays for him.

Just to know our likelihood of vexing others we live with will not, however, make up more endurable or lovable; but, if we are seeking our own happiness we naturally discover that there is promise in acquired ability to be more tolerable and more lovable. A thing we forget is that the more annoying we grow the more annoying we cause others of our family to become toward us. Successful efforts at correction seem to begin with ourselves—the last place we normally would choose to have them begin.

An occasional preacher speaks on marriage, parent problems and family relationship. From one church bulletin I read these sermon titles for evening meetings:

"Why Family Life Has Changed." "What Are the Foundation of Successful Marriage?" "What are Homes For?" "The Next Generation." Why not more of such?

While there are still some "marrying parsons" who are willing and eager to marry anybody, anywhere, any time, there is an increasing number of preachers who are beginning to see themselves in a strategic position for guiding young men and women towards exercise of more intelligence before entering upon matrimony, helping them avoid matrimonial wrecks, and for helping parents and children to live together reasonably happy.

Of course, the modern preacher has no easy job. He probably does much better than he is said to do.

Rabbi Henry Kagan At Temple Israel

Group Of 250 Lay And Rabbinical Leaders Will Visit All Temples Of Country

Rabbi Henry Kagan, who occupies the pulpit of Temple Israel, at Uniontown, will be the guest speaker in Temple Isael, Highland avenue, Friday evening, November 6, at 8 o'clock.

Rabbi Kagan is one of a group of 250 of the most distinguished lay and rabbinical leaders of the Jewish faith, who are conducting a Union tour, which will cover the entire country during the four weeks following November 6.

These meetings are arranged to arouse interest and combat the indifference of the Hebrew congregations.

David A. Brown of New York City, lay leader and philanthropist has arranged this tour and in a letter to Marcus Feuchtwanger, president of the local Temple Israel he says: "This winter will be a test of our synagogues, as to generosity, endurance and loyalty to their teaching.

"The world is witnessing the breaking down of many institutions. Millions are being gathered to help the hungry. This is as it should be, but, it would prove a great disaster, if we did not realize that at a time like this, brave men should make sacrifices to maintain the ideals of life."

Youth, Maturity Work Together In Program Of Y. W. Girl Reserves

"Life is a continual novelty". This is what the Girl Reserves of New Castle and of the whole country are discovering. As this discovery is made, new and different problems arise in the minds of the girls; problems which cannot be solved by the girls alone, but which need the guidance of a person who has had experience. Maturity brings steadiness, stability and experience to each generation. Youth brings fine courage, new zeal, curiosity and the eagerness for novelty. The combination of youth and maturity results in clearer thinking and better and more profitable living. It is natural for a young girl to turn to an older person who has passed over the same way, to ask for advice and help. For this season each Girl Reserve club has certain advisers, who, because they have the interests of youth at heart, are willing to take time to work and play with the girls. Youth demands so many different things—sometimes protection, sometimes companionship and most often direction. Advisers must be ready to adventure with the girls and supplement and enrich their lives.

The advisers of the Senior High Girl Reserve Club are: Miss Grace Jones, chief adviser; Miss Martha Smith, Miss Mary Long, Miss Julia Gordon and Mrs. Bannon. These advisers are assisted by Miss Janet Kissinger and Miss Dorthy Cain, who are "interest group" leaders.

George Washington Girl Reserves are supervised by Miss Virginia Duff, chief adviser; Miss Helen Scnneborn, Miss Lenora Beall and Mrs. Eleanor Vahue.

Miss Evea Coulter is chief adviser for the Ben Franklin club, Miss Margaret Guy, Miss Hazel Bergland, Miss Agnes Webster are the advisers. Interest group leaders are Miss Hazel Campbell, Miss Lenora Beall and Miss Wilson.

The Elm Street Girl Reserves are directed by Miss Brown, who has charge of the Elm street branch of the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Dorothy Long and Miss Wilson are advising the Sciota street Girl Reserves. Miss Butler, who is head of the neighborhood house, has proved a great help in reorganizing the club this year.

This year a new club has been organized in the continuation school at George Washington. Miss Burry, who is at the head of the continuation school, is adviser of the club. Because of the personal contact with these girls and her visits to their homes, her help is very valuable.

The Girl Reserve movement of the local Y. W. C. A. is not a girl movement exclusively. It carries out as the younger part of the Young Women's Christian Association that function which has to do with associating youth and maturity, experience and inexperience. This active relationship of mutual give and take between adviser or leader and girls is applicable whether in a small informal group or of conference.

It is interesting to note that there are 11,000 Girl Reserve advisers in the United States and 500 Girl Reserve secretaries.

Pimples Itched and Burned and Hurt a Lot. Cuticura Healed.

"My face had a pile of pimples and blackheads. The pimples were small and red, and in the summer they used to itch and burn and hurt a lot. Some of them festered and looked very badly, also made me very uncomfortable. The trouble lasted about six months.

"I tried a lot of different remedies but none of them did any good. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in a few days I could see an improvement. I continued using them and in a short time I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Sarah Smith, 327 Washington St., W. Pittston, Pa., Jan. 19, 1931.

FESS ASKS G. O. P. COMMITTEE MEET

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Senator Simeon D. Fess, chairman of the Republican national committee, Monday called a select convention of its membership for Dec. 15, in the capital.

The chairman's succinct announcement was:

"As matters of great importance are to come before the committee it is hoped the entire membership be present in person or represented by proxy."

It has already been agreed that the Ohio senator will remain as chairman of the committee until the June convention next year.

MOTHER AND INFANT DAUGHTER INJURED IN MACHINE CRASH

(International News Service)

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Lucille Bronzell, of McKean, was in St. Vincents hospital Monday suffering from injuries to the head, back and body sustained when the car in which she and her eight-months-old daughter, Evelyn, were riding overturned here. Her condition was not believed serious.

The child, thrown from the mothers arms to the street, escaped with body bruises. The accident occurred when a car driven by Bronzell, collided with one driven by William Henry, Erie.

National City Bank Sees Improvement

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The return of public confidence in banking power and credit is seen by the National City bank of New York as a distinct indication that better times are in the offing.

In its monthly survey of economic and financial conditions, the bank stresses the liquidity of the larger city banks which, it says, possess about 40 per cent of the country's total banking resources and are in such excellent condition that they are enabled to extend valuable assistance to smaller institutions where they can safely do so.

W. P. I. A. L. Committee Forms Class AA League Composed Of Strongest Teams

Eleven Members Admitted In League—Teams Must Card Four Loop Rivals

After several years debate the football committee of the W. P. I. A. L. league eventually won out with the formation of a Class AA schoolboy grid league composed of the leading high school football teams in the district. Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner of the local high school whose idea it was to form a league of this kind was present at the meeting of the moguls which was held Monday at the Fort Pitt hotel, in Pittsburgh.

Starts In '32

The new league will commence to function in 1932. The charter members all of whom had representatives at the meeting are, New Castle, Greensburg, Washington, Clairton, New Kensington, Turtle Creek Union, Wilkinsburg, Jeannette, Monessen, Norwin and Charleroi.

Fans will have an opportunity to see three leagues combat next season. The three leagues are the Class AA, Class A and Class B. These three titles will be awarded annually to the winners. The above teams which formed the league Monday were extended invitations to join and did so willingly. Other members were considered but only the above 11 were taken into the league.

Each team is required to play a minimum of four games with Class AA rivals. It was also voted upon Monday that a defeat by a Class A team would in no way affect the title chances of a Class AA eleven. The Class AA league is a body in itself and will determine its own championship.

Just how the title winners will be selected at the end of the season is not known as yet. Whether the point system or plain percentage plan base will be used was left for future deliberation. The consensus of opinion appeared to favor the percentage system on the number of games won and lost instead of the point system now in vogue in picking the winners.

The members believe the point system has created much criticism and incidentally several synthetic title holders in the past few years. It was also decided to hold a meeting annually on the first Monday in November.

Questionaires will be distributed to the coaches of the member schools and upon the answers to this document will be determined the rules of the league. Following the meeting several games were arranged by the different representatives of the school.

Undefeated Team Plays New Castle

McKeesport High Hopes To Keep Slate Clean When It Meets Locals

Taggart stadium will again draw the spotlight next Saturday afternoon when McKeesport high, undefeated to date and one of the leading contenders for the W. P. I. A. L. cup will oppose the New Castle high gridders. The game is scheduled to start at 2:30 o'clock.

McKeesport is a new opponent on the local card and comes here with one of the best elevens ever to represent McKeesport high on the gridiron. Starting off with an 8-0 victory over its old rival, Glassport, the Tubers have come through victorious since and hope to record an undefeated season and a possible schoolboy championship.

The fans in McKesport are enthused about their eleven and according to dope will send a crowd here for the game. Coach Phil Bridenbaugh did not appear elated over the showing New Castle made against Turtle Creek last Saturday when the Tin City boys lost a 6-0 verdict. New Castle should have won that game.

Taking the ball within the 10-yard line three times, the local boys were held when they reached this spot and lost the ball three times.

A victory over McKeesport will automatically eliminate the Tubers from any consideration when the committee sits down to select the cup winners.

"Kid" Chocolate Trims Feldman

At Least That Is What Judges At New York Show Say, But Were They Right?

By HYPE IGOE
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Somewhere among my trinkets, I've got an old grammar school graduation medal. If Lew Feldman cares to meet me on the city hall steps today, I'll pin it on him.

I'm afraid that nobody will think of any such ceremoney following his brave up-hill, down-hill battle against Kid Chocolate of Cuba at the St. Nicholas Rink last night.

It was inevitable that he was meeting a ringful of class when he met the Weed, but few expected to see him turn holy terrior in the first five rounds and come within an ace of ruining James Joy Johnston's great lightweight battle between Tony Canzoneri and the Keed.

Chocolate Wins.

That is one bout in which Mister Joy Johnston expects to make his board of directors throw a victory party. Sitting at the ringside the joy portion of Mister Johnston's name turned to deepest grief.

Chocolate got the decision at the end of ten rounds but he had to come from Johnston's Death Valley like a man o' war to glean it. Feldman must have been snooping around the rodeo last week because he certainly had that "ride 'em cowboy" habit. Chocolate could neither punch nor shake him off.

Feldman's courage, his face a red curtain from an old cut between his eyes and a deep wound across the bridge of his nose, was superb. He slowed up a bit in the last five rounds and he told me why. It might be well for Muldoon, Farley and Phelan to paste the following in their hats for consideration. Feldman said he made a "gentleman's" agreement to come in at 132 in order to protect Chocolate's junior lightweight title.

Franklin Plays For Grid Title

Ben Franklin Prepares For Titular Contest With Sophomores Thursday

Two undefeated grid machines will be seen in action Thursday afternoon at Taggart Stadium when the Benjamin Franklin junior high Blue and Gold cohorts battle the Sophomores of the high school for the Inter-class league championship. The game starts at 4:00 o'clock.

Boasting victories over some of the strongest elevens in this district, the Coach Emmett Gillaspie team is favored to cop the bacon over the Sophs. Franklin has captured victories over eight fast elevens so far and hopes to add the Sophomores to the list.

The Sophomores are undefeated and like the junior high boys boast of a smooth and strong team. A fast game is anticipated.

Washington Humbles Juniors In Last-Minute Rally, 12-0; Score On Long Dash And Pass

George Washington took a 12-0 victory from the Juniors of Senior high in tornado-like fashion when they met on Taggart field for an inter-class league contest on Monday afternoon, as 500 students watched from the sidelines. Washington scored in the final two minutes of play.

The triumph for the orange and black clad warriors marked the first to be achieved this year, while the defeat for the Juniors turned the tables on their list of earlier victories. The playing field was in ideal shape for the tussle.

Scoreless Until End

It was for three long quarters that the spectators had patiently waited to see one or the other team score. But so evenly matched were the two elevens and so well did both guard their ground that neither could push the ball to the other's danger zone. And when the fourth stanza opened the crowd was certain a score was near.

But it was not until the timepiece hands showed only two minutes to go before the final whistle that a rapid-fire turn in playing came. The crowd was thrilled as the Juniors launched an aerial drive that promised to bring results. The ball had been brought from mid-field to Washington's 15-yard line.

Dashes 85 Yards

Another overhead play was barked by Aldrich, Junior quarter, and as the ball spinned from center the Washington defensive spread to batter down the pass. It was Evenoski who hit it, and purposely into the arms of Ray George, Washington right tackle, who evaded opposing tackles and ran 85 yards to the Juniors' goal. That was the first touchdown. Their kick for the extra point was blocked.

Then again, although time to play was short, they lined up in formation as Washington kicked off to the Juniors. Time was fleeting as the Juniors' passing attack once more began. But Miles, Washington, intercepted a speedy one and ran to the Juniors' 30. It was plunged to the 25.

Pass Boosts Count

Here Quarterback Reider, Washington, called for a pass, and it was a fast one, Anderson to Covelli, that scored the second Washington touchdown to boost the score to 12-0. They failed to kick the extra point.

Just as they got up from the extra point scrimmage the closing whistle blew.

For Washington the playing of Ray George stood out, while the entire backfield performed the best this season. The line plunging of Aldrich and Ramsey, and pass receiving of McKay, sparkled the brightest for the Junior team.

The summary:

Washington 12.		Juniors 0.
Covelli	R.E.	Rogers
R. George	R.T.	Dicks
Scarazzo	R.G.	Johnson
Donegan	C.	DiCarlo
R. Davis	L.G.	Russo
McClellan	L.T.	George
M. Perrett	L.E.	McKay
Reider	Q.B.	Aldrich
Miles	R.H.	Ramsey
H. Davis	L.H.	Perelman
Evenoski	F.B.	Christman

Touchdowns—Washington: George and Covelli. Substitutions: Williams for George, Rogers for Perrett, Zillian for Rogers and Anderson for Reider.

Referee—Nelson.

Titans Bruised From Tilt With Waynesburg Saturday

Regulars Are Rested Monday; Point For Thiel Game

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 3.—Bruised and sore from the hard game with Waynesburg at Waynesburg Saturday, the Westminster College football team had only light drills yesterday. Coach John Lawther sent the varsity team through signal drills for a short time and then excused the players. The second and third team men, however, were sent through spirited scrimmage drills.

The Titans face the steadily improving Thiel team at Greenville Saturday. Thiel started the season as the best defensive team in the section, gradually developed its offense, and now has a strong defense and offense. The improvement in offensive drive of the Lutherans will cause Lawther to drill the men today and tomorrow in defensive measures, especially against forward passes.

Against Waynesburg, the Titan forward pass defense worked very well indeed. If the Thiel passes can be knocked down, the Titans will have a chance to meet the Lutherans half way in ability.

Westminster's green team, with 10 first-year men in the lineup, took on new life against Waynesburg. Team play and football fundamentals were outstanding as the Titans played the Jackets off their feet. The team realizes now its potential strength, and should make a good showing against the heavier Lutherans.

In all probability, Leyshock and Hunneke will start at end, Rehfus and Regdon at tackle, Rush and Rose at guard, Franklin at center; Turner at quarterback, Staples at fullback, and Young at Siljander at halfback.

Dick Fuller, guard; Glen Shaffer, quarter; and James Bloker, center, and Alan Harper, half, are still out with injuries.

LARRY GAINS IS VICTOR.

Union Prepares For Game With Shenango High

Union High Will Meet Shenango At Scotland Lane Friday Afternoon

UNION TEAM IN GOOD CONDITION

Coach David "Morg" Boyd will put his Union high school football players through tough workouts this week in preparation for the Union-Shenango high battle scheduled for Friday afternoon at the Union high field, Scotland Lane.

Union's team unbeaten and tied twice this year will fight hard to keep the slate clean. There is big rivalry between the two teams and a record crowd will no doubt line Scotland Lane field to witness the struggle. Last year Union hung a 32 to 0 defeat on Shenango and from the looks of things this year it will be different, with Shenango sporting a first class ball club.

Shenango Is Good.

Shenango will not be a "setup." Coach "Pop" Johnson has a mighty good team and one that will give Union a stiff engagement. Mercer and Bessemer have fallen victims of Shenango in the past two games.

The Shenango team has had two weeks to prepare for this game, while Union had a tough customer to contend with last Saturday in Freedom high at Taggart field. Both teams are confident of winning. A real tussle is looked for.

Seven Injured.

The game with Freedom put several Union members on the injured list including the halfback star, Joe Jaworski, who is nursing a badly bruised side. Davies has a bad leg, Davidson has an injured shoulder, Georgacz injured his ankle. Denney has a trick leg that must be favored, Captain Sniezek hurt his shoulder, Reynolds injured his shoulder in scrimmage, Monday night.

Coach Boyd has a lot of fine looking reserve material and will get a chance to use some of them against Shenango with some of his stars on the hospital list.

Horseshoe Rivalry Finally Decided

Ralph Reed Is Returned A Winner Over His Opponent, Dr. J. H. Carpenter

For some time past, there has been rumors of an approaching contest in the pitching of horseshoes between Ralph Reed and Dr. J. H. Carpenter. These two men, who for some reason, have been rivals in contests of this kind for some time past and have each been claiming the championship in all lines of endeavor along these lines, finally met last night at the horseshoe court in the basement of the Highland United Presbyterian church and settled that end of the argument at least for the time being.

Reed took both games that were played, the first by a margin of 15 points and the second by the very narrow margin of three points. In the matter of making ringers, they were even up, each making sixteen in the two games played.

In the first game, Dr. Carpenter made thirty-five points and had six ringers, while Reed had fifty points and 7 ringers. In the second game Dr. Carpenter had 47 points and 10 ringers, while Reed had 50 points and made 9 ringers.

DEMPSEY WANTS TO BATTLE SCHMELING

(International News Service)

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, world heavyweight champion, told the Hachtausgabe Monday he had been informed by Leonard Sachs, Jack Dempsey's manager, that Demsey would fight none of the serious contenders for the title but would await a "shot" at Schmeling.

Jacobs, who left later in the day for Paris, emphasized that no contract has been signed but said it was a ninety percent bet that he and Sachs would come to terms.

Schools Sever Grid Relations

Albright College And St. Joseph's School Of Reading Sever Relations

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—Athletic relations between Albright college of Reading and St. Joseph's, this city, have been severed, Emid Thomas, athletic director of St. Joseph's, admitted today.

Following the football game here Saturday when Steve Fuller of Lansford, an end of St. Joseph's team, was injured while Albright was defeating the local eleven 20-0, it was reported the teams would not meet next year. This was confirmed by Thomas, who said the contract for a contest between Albright and St. Joe's in 1932 at Reading had been canceled.

Fear of developing ill-feeling between players of both sides was given as the reason.

Fuller is suffering from concussion of the brain, twisted neck muscles and body bruises. He was hurt in the first period and taken to Misericordia hospital where he is still a patient.

Dilks Will Run From Meadville Here Wednesday

Long Distance Runner Will Attempt 62½ Mile Run For New Record

Earle Lin Dilks, New Castle long distance runner, will attempt to shatter the record of the American Indian, by running from Meadville to New Castle, a distance of 62½ miles, in about 9½ hours, tomorrow.

The runner will start from Meadville at 8 a. m. and, if all turns out well, will probably get here at 5:30 p. m., or a short time later.

The record for a run of similar length was established by Tabiro and San Miguel, who in November, 1926, spanned the highways from Panchua to Mexico City in 9 hours, 37 minutes.

Coast League To Abandon "Split"

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3. — The split season in the Pacific Coast league probably will be abandoned in 1932. The circuit will play just one season-long schedule with no playoffs.

All this has come about because of the miserable financial fiasco in the 1931 playoffs between San Francisco and Hollywood, the split season winners. The total paid attendance for the four games was $14,635.

The league was compelled to apportion $10,000 to make up to the players the difference in their slice of the playoffs and actual wages for the season.

The leaders plan to apportion $15,000 in 1932 to the players on the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th place clubs, and then try to arrange a series with the winner of the "Junior World Series" involving the American Association and the International Leagues.

"Strangler" Lewis Defeats Zbyszko

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Ed "Strangler" Lewis today wore the crown of world's heavyweight wrestling champion (of Illinois) as a reward for his victory over Vladek Zbyszko last night in the feature bout of a charity program at the stadium.

Lewis tossed Zbyszko twice to win the match, best two in three falls. They toiled, pulled and grunted for 36 minutes before the Strangler was awarded the decision. Lewis employed the headlock to good advantage.

Approximately $5,000 of the $13,064.70 gate will go to charity, the government's relief commission estimated. As far as the Illinois athletic commission is concerned Lewis is now world champion.

Ostrosky Will Replace Lewis On Tech Eleven

By a queer quirk of fate Tony Ostrosky former New Castle high star lineman, and now slated for right-end on the Carnegie Tech football team, will replace Libbus Lewis, Washington, Pa., end, who suffered a fractured right leg in the battle with Notre Dame last Saturday.

Ostrosky is a Junior at Tech, and on the 1930 team he subbed for Ted Rosensweig, and had very little opportunity of playing football, however, Ostrosky got into several games and looked mighty promising. He was slated for a regular end job this year, but along came Lewis and Stewart a couple of husky Sophomore ends and Coach Steffen thought that Ostrosky was too short. Tony has the fight, but lacks the stature. Ostrosky went to work and fought hard for a starting end berth, only to see his high school rival Lib Lewis beat him out, and Stewart was given the other end.

Ostrosky Is Plugger.

The New Castle boy has been saying littie and sawing wood, he has been a hard worker all year. He always gives his best. Coach Steffen regards Ostrosky on a par with Rosensweig in the matter of snaring forward passes, but Tony is just a little short of heighth. He is a deadly tackler.

Ostrosky got into the game in the second quarter last Saturday against the Irish replacing Colin Stewart at left-end. He immediately grabbed a pass from Bevivino for 15 yards. He squirmed through the line and tackled the great Shwartz a number of times.

When Lib Lewis received his injury and was carried from the field Ostrosky replaced him at right-end and that is where the New Castle boy will undoubtedly be for the remainder of the season. Lewis will be in the hospital for two months.

Ostrosky and Lewis once bitter rivals on the New Castle and Washington high teams, playing against each other three years, now are team-mates and pals, and now Ostrosky has Lewis' job. It's a funny world.

Motor Boats Making Big Sport Splash

Penn To Tackle Notre Dame At South Bend, Ind.

Coach Harvey Harman Prepares Penn For Jaunt To Indiana City

HARVARD TANGLES WITH DARTMOUTH

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—While most of the leaders in eastern football face opponents hardly worthy of the name this Saturday, Harvard, Penn and New York University again go over the top to grapple with formidable enemies.

In fact Harvard is the only one of the trio that appears to have a chance of coming through safely. The Crimson plays Dartmouth at Cambridge and despite the Green's battling tie against Yale, Harvard gets the call.

Penn-Notre Dame.

Penn, able to just squeeze out a win over Lafayette, journeys to South Bend, Indiana, to find out all about that Wabash moon and the 1931 Notre Dame eleven.

New York University's Violets, crushed last week by Oregon, entertain Georgia in New York and things look pretty blue for NYU.

The undefeated Cornell and Syracuse elevens, Army, Yale, Columbia, Pittsburgh, Holy Cross and Colgate mostly are battling setups. Cornell has Alfred at Ithaca, Syracuse takes on Western Reserve at Syracuse and Army engages Louisiana State. Yale picks on St. John's of Annapolice, Columbia meets Virginia and Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech scrap it out in Pittsburgh.

Holy Cross-Dukes.

Holy Cross has a day of rest with Duquesne, while Colgate takes on Penn State at State College.

Detroit comes to New York to test Fordham. Navy, weak as restaurant soup, goes to Columbus to play Ohio State.

Penn, facing Notre Dame, probably has the toughest assignment of any eastern eleven.

The Quakers, swelled out of shape by their defeat of Wisconsin, did not look so good against a well coached crew of Sophomores from Lafayette and it would take a vivid imagination to figure out they will do more than make an interesting afternoon against the Irish.

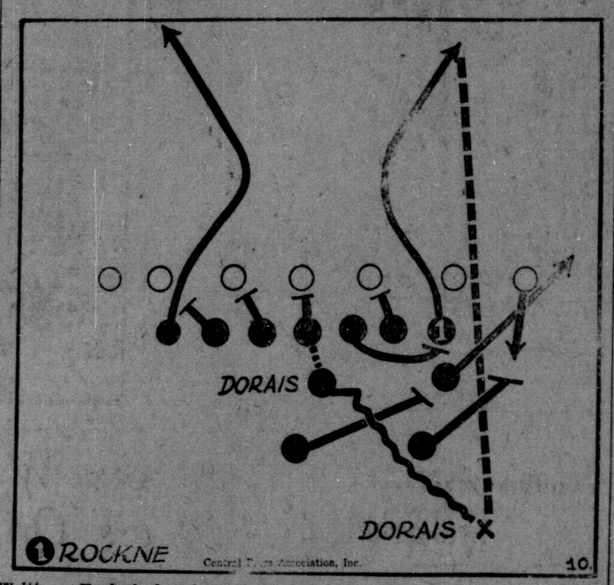
Rockne's Best Plays

By COACH EDWARD (SLIP) MADIGAN

How the Rockne-Dorais combine crushed Army.



Written Exclusively for Central Press and New Castle News.

NUMBER TEN

Knute Rockne never tired of telling his Notre Dame players about the famous forward pass plays that he and Gus Dorais collaborated in when they were teammates on the 1913 varsity.

They introduced the modern version of the aerial game to the effete east on the Hudson plains in 1913. That was Notre Dame's first game with the Army at the academy.

Imagine the difference in the size of the crowd they played to then as compared with the present time. Wherever Notre Dame and the Army meet nowadays it's a capacity crowd and ticket applications unfilled, rain or shine.

But in 1913 admission to the Notre Dame-Army game was by invitation only. It was quite a social achievement to procure an invitation, too, unless you were close to someone else who was close to someone else.

With Dorais, now coaching at Universtiy of Detroit, doing the passing and Rockne, the end, catching them, the game was a nightmare to the Cadets. Dorais and Rock started a series of wild passes that smothered Army, 35 to 7.

Football teams were often given to superstition in those days and maybe that was the reason why Rockne marched to the field playing a flute and the team came on the field walking backwards.

The east at that time had little faith in the air game. It had no passers to compare with Dorais either for distance or accuracy. About the only type of pass they ever used was a short toss made in much the same fashion as a basketball player trying a free throw after a foul. Not much of the spectacular in a play like that.

It took the bullet-like, spiralling heaves of Dorais to awaken the east to the possibilities of the air game.

Dorais was the quarterback and he was just a little fellow. He would stoop down in back of center to take the ball on the snap, as all quarterbacks did in those days.

Then he would run back 15 or 20 yards, sometimes more and look around to see if he could see Rockne in the clear. If Rock was in the open Dorais would let fly and usually the pass clicked.

But if Rock was unable to evade the defense Dorais would throw the ball on the ground. This was ruled as a grounded pass and the only penalty was the loss of a down, the ball being put back in play from the place it started from.

Thus Dorais could try a couple of these passes, and even if they failed to be completed, Notre Dame could still kick without loss of yardage.

After the disastrous work of Dorais and Rockne against Army that year the rules committee saw that restrictions were passed providing a penalty of 15 yards for deliberately grounding the ball.

Armistice Day Dinner Planned

Ex-Service Men To Gather On Evening Of November 11 At The Castleton

Each year for the past five or six, a group of ex-service men have gathered together for evening dinner on Armistice Day for the purpose of living over again for a few brief moments the days when they wore the khaki and the blue.

This year will be no exception to the pleasant rule which has been in force. At six o'clock on the evening of November 11, a group will gather in the Castleton for dinner and an impromptu program will follow.

Membership in any veteran organization is unnecessary to attend the dinner. All that is necessary is that the man served during the war. John D. Kennedy, cashier of the Peoples Savings and Trust Company, W. E. Ferver whose place of business is near the corner of East Washington and East streets, and George L. Smith, druggist on South Mill street have been designated to take the money from those who will attend. All that is necessary is to give either of these three men a dollar.

Car Is Wrecked In Automobile Crash

Harry W. Ringer Brings Suit Against Travers Tire Company For $778

Harry W. Ringer, has filed a suit at the prothonotary's office against Theresa E. Travers, John Travers, L. G. Travers and Eleanor Travers, trading as the Travers Tire Company, to recover $778, as the result of an automobile accident at the intersection of Butler avenue and Ray street.

Plaintiff claims that Theresa and Eleanor Travers own an automobile which is used in the business of the Travers Tire Company. On September 15, 1931, it was operated by Oscar M. Leonhardt, agent for the company.

Ringer says that he was going East on Butler avenue and held out his hand as he approached Ray street, as a signal that he was going to turn. Leonhardt was going west and crashed into him as he made the turn.

Ringer says that there is a sign on Butler avenue to slow up as Ray street is approached from the east, but that it was disregarded by the operator of the Travers car.

The Ringer car was badly damaged and Ringer received slight injuries.

Mash Clogging Sewers At Erie

More Powerful Pump Ordered For Sewage Disposal Plant Due To Mash

(International News Service)

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 3.—Erie, in the opinion of H. L. Munger, director of streets, must have a still in every block.

Munger expressed his belief today as he ordered a more powerful pump than that now operated at the sewage disposal plant, to solve the problem of mash clogging the plant.

Large quantities of mash are coming through the sewage system, Munger said, and the present pump has been clogged several times because of it.

One trouble in America is that so many people resent being reformed by others no better than they are.

All Clubs Soft For Cardinals

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Those St. Louis Cards grow profusely agitated when statement is made that they won the 1931 flag "just by picking on those enfeefled Reds."

"Its all true that we won 20 out of 22 from those Cincinnati guys," they retort. "But don't forget that we took the measure of every other club in the circuit, too."

The "worst" showing by St. Louis was when they took only 12 out of 22 games from the Giants, Dodgers and Pirates. They won 13 out of 22 from the Braves, 14 in 22 from the Cubs and 18 out of 22 from the Phillies.

Skiddo For Walker And His Ambitions

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Another new rule is in the books of the State boxing commission. It socks the "skippers," those ambitious mittmen of the lighter divisions who hope to hurdle one or more classes and land, with a single "skip and jump" in a heavier class. The new rule carries the official golden stamp and seal which means "skiddo" for the lofty ambitions of Mickey Walker, a heavy middleweight, who would break a log chain to get a crack at Primo Carnera's protruding button or Max Schmeling's schnozzle.

Illinois Takes Steps To Halt Rough "Rasslers"

Illinois Wrestling Officials Will Stop All Tossing Out Of Ring Business

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—"Hippodrome wrestling no longer will be tolerated in Illinois" declared George F. Getz of the State Athletic Commission." Henceforth the men will wrestle strictly according to the standard rules. This stunt of tossing each other out of the ring or rolling out themselves is taboo. We will suspend any wrestler guilty of such practices in the future and in flagrant cases, will hold up their purses.

"I have seen plenty of wrestling matches of the modern variety. I cannot say they were not on the level. But I do say, that I never saw one that I didn't think was just an act—not a contest—so staged as to excite the crowd and bring them back the next week for a view of almost an identical match.

"To me they are just burlesque exhibitors on real wrestling. The Commission henceforth will not sanction affairs of this kind and the men either will wrestle in full keeping with the rules or stay out of the state of Illinois."

World Series Hero Will Bank Most Of Money Made In Vaudeville Tour

(International News Service)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 3.—John "Pepper" Martin, the world series hero, will go back to the farm when his baseball days are done, he said today in revealing his plans for the future.

"I am going to put some of the money I make in vaudeville in the bank and I am going to use the rest of it to buy a ranch or a piece of land in Oklahoma," he explained during stage appearances.

"And believe me I will be glad when this vaudeville is over a week from Friday in Oklahoma City, he added. "Acting is all right but I like baseball.

And when he can no longer turn to baseball, "Pepper" said, he will have the Oklahoma ranch to depend on for a livlihood.

Martin said he plans to take an extensive deer hunting trip in Mexico as soon as he completes his vaudeville appearance.

GREAT GRID TEAMS OF THE PAST

BY BILL RITT

NO. 7—THE IRISH RIDE TO FAME—1924

The man who is foolish enough to try to select and publish what he thinks is Notre Dames best eleven invites ridicule. Even if, by some incredible union of opinion, the rest of us would agree with him, his "best team might last but a season before another Notre Dame eleven is on the scene, hailed as "greatest."

Notre Dame has had so many splendid football teams, one following right on the heels of another, that even the late Knute Rockne had to change his mind about them. He thought his 1930 team was "greatest" until the 1924 season.

That 1924 Irish team forever will be famous for its backfield—the storied Four Horsemen. But whether the 1924 line wasn't even better than the backfield is an argument to which there is no answer.

Anyway, here is the line: Ed Hunsinger and Chuck Collins, fleet, sure pass receivers, alert, on defense. The tackles, Joe Bach and Edgar (Rip) Miller were powerful, hard charging men. Johnny Weibel and Noble Kizer were the guards and grand ones, too. At center towered Captain Adam Walsh, an All-American, if there ever was one.

Irish Cavalry, 1924
HUNSINGER	End
E. MILLER	Tackle
KIZER	Guard
WALSH	Center
WEIBEL	Guard
BACH	Tackle
COLLINS	End
STUHLDREHER	Quarter
CROWLEY	Half
D. MILLER	Half
LAYDEN	Full

Roaming behind the stonewall which became known as the "Seven Mules," were Harry Stuhldreher, quarterback; Sleepy Jim Crowley and Don Miller, halfbacks, and Elmer Layden, fullback. They were the Four Horsemen.

This was probably the smartest football team ever put together. Proof is that today all but one or two of this entire eleven are holding important coaching assignments.

Little Lombard formed the first chapter in Notre Dame's saga of sensational victories, the Irish brushing Lombard aside, 40-0. Wabash crumbled, 34-0. The Horsemen with the Mules ahead rode into the Polo Grounds and trampled old Army, 13-7.

Princeton next entertained Rockne's Rovers. Sleepy Crowley woke up and galloped through the amazed Tigers for the two touchdowns which gave Notre Dame the game, 12-0.

The Horsemen galloped home and annexed Georgia Tech's scalp after a 34-3 session. The following Saturday the Irish cavalry was found 'way up in Wisconsin where they were mistreating the Badgers. Score, 38-3.

Nebraska, for years the nemesis of Notre Dame, came to South Bend. It was always war when Cornhusker and Fighting Irish met. But this game wasn't a war, not even a skirmish. It was a 34-6 massacre that atoned for many Nebraska-bred disappointments of previous seasons.

Northwestern was met on a Chicago field and Northwestern had the famed Moon Baker. But Baker was one man. There were four Horsemen. However, like the 1930 and 1931 Purple-Irish struggles this was a dog fight and a sweet one. Baker's trained toe twice snapped field goals across the Irish line. Crowley snared a pass and roared through. A moment later Stuhldreher twisted across for a score. The final count was Notre Dame 13, Northwestern 6.

Dazing the eastern football experts with 12 consecutive completed passes—a record—Notre Dame next triumphed over a light, fast Carnegie Tech team in Pittsburgh. This one wound up, 40-19.

The Pacific coast was yelling for a view of this all-star Irish aggregation. Rockne accommodated. Notre Dame's thundering herd trekked to the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Cal., where on January 1 they forced one of Pop Warner's crack Stanford teams plus Ernie Nevers.

Layden went wild against the Cardinals. He intercepted two passes and converted each into a touchdown. He scored another while Hunsinger put across a fourth. Stanford fought like war-crazed Zulus. The brilliant Nevers crashed through Notre Dame's All-American line until it splintered. He raged across the goal line, but this was a super, elastic team he was trying to destroy. In the end Notre Dame had won, 27-10.

Petition

In the Court of Common Pleas of Lawrence County, Pennsylvania. No. 5, March Term, 1931. Sitting in Equity.

P. T. McCormick vs Edward Larkin and Indiana Harbar Belt Railroad Company.

To Edward Larkin, Defendant:—

You will take notice that in the above entitled case Indiana Harbor Belt Railroad Company has filed its answer and petition, the substance and object of which is that the monies paid by P. T. McCormick into Court in the amount of Two Hundred Sixteen ($216.00) Dollars, being the price bidden by the said P. T. McCormick for one dapple gray mare purchased by him at a sale held or conducted by you at Volant in the County of Lawrence and State of Pennsylvania, be now paid to Indiana Harbor Belt Railroad Company as owner of said mare by reason of the fact that you removed the mare from a carload of horses without right or title thereto and that Indiana Harbor Belt Railroad Company became the owner of said mare by having paid to Sam Weinberg, to whom the carload of horses was consigned at Owendale, Michigan, the value of said mare, and the said Railroad Company now claims to have the monies paid into Court by the said P. T. McCormick by reason of notice served upon him after he had become the purchaser of the said mare of the fact that you had no title therein and that the title thereto and thereto was in the said Railroad Company.

And upon the application and petition of Indiana Harbor Belt Railroad Company a citation and rule to show cause was issued upon you and the Sheriff of Lawrence County has returned the said citation and rule "Not found" and thereupon, upon application of said Indiana Harbor Belt Railroad Company, the Court has entered the following decree, viz:—

"Now, this day of October, A. D., 1931, it appearing to the satisfaction of the Court by the return of the Sheriff and by affidavits of Thomas E. McNamaro and R. J. Edgeworth, filed in this Court this day, that Edward Larkin cannot upon diligent inquiry be found and cannot be personally served with the rule to show cause or process, it is now ordered, adjudged and decreed that the said Edward Larkin appear in Court on the first Monday of December 1931, at 2:00 o'clock P. M. and show cause, if any he has, why the monies in Court be not paid to Indiana Harbor Belt Railroad Company, and maintain his claim, if any he has thereto; and if he fail to appear and show cause, the Court will proceed as fully and effectually as if rule or process had been duly served within the jurisdiction of this Court upon him. It is further ordered that a statement of the substance and object of the Petition of Indiana Harbor Belt Railroad Company and a copy of this Order be published in the New Castle News in the issues of November 3, 10 and 17."

Certified from the record this 30th day of October, A. D., 1931.

Secret Service Agent Tracks Down Slayer Of Henrietta Schmerler

INDIAN COWBOY CONFESSES TODAY

(International News Service)

GLOBE, Arizona, Nov. 3.—"I killed Henrietta Schmerler, the white student, to keep her from telling the white men I had assaulted her."

That was the explanation today of Golney Seymour, 21, Indian cowboy, married and the father of a child, held in the Gila county jail charged with killing Miss Schmerler, 24, a Columbia university co-ed last July when she repulsed him while they were enroute to a dance.

Following Seymour's preliminary arraignment, and the setting of a hearing for Nov. 23, Alexander Street, El Paso, Texas, secret service agent who tracked down Seymour, and United States Attorney John C. Gung'l left on a secret mission to Tucson, Ariz., Gung'l's headquarters.

The government will charge Seymour killed Miss Schmerler and threw her stabbed and crushed body into a ravine a half mile from the graveyard near the Roosevelt Indian school on the Fort Apache Reservation.

Authorities today praised Agent Street for his secret work among the Apaches. Several years ago he solved the murders of several wealthy Osage Indians who were killed for their life insurance, and obtained the conviction of two men.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—A platform pledging united action and calling on railroad operators to meet employes in a national conference to deal with common problems today voiced railway labor's answer to prospective and actual wage reductions.

Formulation of the platform was the first act of the heads of the 21 major railway brotherhoods meeting in annual convention here. Its adoption, in the form of a brief resolution, dissipated any doubts as to the stand of the workers with regard to proposals similar to that of the New York Central, which requested its employes to accept a ten percent wage reduction for a year.

On National Scale.

Railway labor, according to David B. Robertson, chairman of the convention and president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, will listen to wage adjustments on a national scale only. Any efforts to effect reductions in pay of any separate group of workers will meet the bitterest opposition from the workers as a unit.

"We asked for a conference on unemployment last spring. The operators turned us down," he said. "Now we are asking for a conference on unemployment, and any other matters the operators desire to consider."

Recognize Situation.

The rail workers resolution conceded the existence of grave problems on the part of the operators as well as the workers, but called attention to organizations of both factors equipped to "deal with the problem from a national standpoint," and requested the calling of a conference to act nationally on:

1. Any proposals affecting railway operation which railway managements desire to advance.
2. Any proposals including present and future relief of unemployment and stabilization of employment, which the association desires to advance.

Adoption of the resolution asking a conference with the operators concluded action of the workers with regard to the twin problems of unemployment and reduced wages. Today the workers' executives were formulating a legislative program for presentation to congress. They plan a program involving a national pension plan.

Charge Made That Police Chief Ejected Election Overseer From Polling Place

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3—Edward Reider, chief of police at McKees Rocks, a suburb, was ordered arrested today on a charge of violating the election laws on a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace Wm. Thompson, of Bellevue, while the army of Allegheny county voters marched to the polls under police guard.

Followers of the Independent Republican organization, supporting Charles C. McGovern and former state Senator C. M. Barr charged that Reider had ejected an election overseer from a polling place in the first ward, McKees Rocks.

Heavy voting was reported from virtually every section of the city.

Police Hear Of A Few Accidents On Streets Of The City

Mrs. Bertha Richardson of 531 Lyndal street, reported Monday night that while she was driving her car west on Sycamore Way at Apple Way, that Mrs. Mary Benedict, of the Sherman Hotel, ran from the south to the north side of Sycamore Way and into the fender of her machine and was knocked down. She was picked up and taken in the Richardson car to the office of a physician, where it was found that she had escaped serious injury, being bruised on the left leg and right ankle.

Thomas Dugan of 734 Croton avenue, reported last night that while his machine was parked on East North street, near Mercer street, that a car bearing Pennsylvania license 0974-Z issued in the name of Mrs. Minnie Kroen, hit the left rear part of the Dugan machine, damaging the tail light and license plate and left rear fender. The driver of the machine did not make report to police.

Judge Killits Denies Story

Toledo Judge Aroused Over Printing Of Story That Trial Favors Nan Britton

(International News Service)

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 3.—Aroused over the publication of a newspaper story in which an attempt was made to interpret the status of the trial of Nan Britton's $50,000 libel suit against C. A. Klunk, of Marion, O., Judge John M. Killits adjourned court today and held a lengthy conference with newspaper reporters.

The session with the newspapermen, which began shortly after 9 o'clock, came to an end at noon at which time Judge Killits released a statement for publication denying the published story. He said in part:

"The court at no time in any ruling or comment it has made has said that the case had established a situation in which there was nothing left for the plaintiff to show under the right to recover damages except proof to the extent of the publication to affect the quantity of damages to be awarded, and nothing the court said justified the conclusion that a verdict was framed in the court's mind against the defendant.

"Comments of the court on that proposition were qualified as to the position the case was in before any defense was heard and the comments, but partially reported, were offered to advise counsel of what was necessary to be shown by way of defense if available.

"Our complaint of the publication as carried in certain newspapers rests therefore upon the fact that the court's position was not only not made clear but was misstated in this particular also because the court took pains to make known that the hotel deposition referred to in previous publications which itself carried no weight whatever, was to be met by combatting evidence on behalf of the defense.

"All of the court's ruling was a comment on the situation when the plaintiff rested and what might have been the result had the defense introduced no testimony. It did not rise to the dignity of even an informal verdict in the controversy.

"The court did not say that it was libelous per se to impute to the plaintiff the crime of criminal libel and that the book known as "the president's daughter" was not criminally liberlous for the only reason that it was published of a dead person."

The jury hearing the damage suit trial was excused until 1:30 p. m. when the trial was expected to continue in secret, with press representatives and spectators barred.

Two Accidents In Mercer County As Result Of Hunting

Leroy Minner, 18, Near West Middlesex, Suffers Wound In Arm And Side

(International News Service)

SHARON, Pa., Nov. 3.—Two hunting accidents were reported in this district today, both resulting from accidental discharge of shotguns.

Leroy Minner, 18, suffered gunshot wounds in his left arm and side when the gun which he and a companion laid aside while they attempted to frighten a rabbit from a hole was accidentally discharged. The victim, who lives near West Middlesex, was rmoved to the Buhl hospital.

A short while later, another nimrod, Alfred Adams, 22, of Wilkinsburg, near Pittsburgh, was brought to the hospital suffering with gunshot wounds of the left hand. His condition was reported as "fairly good."

Yet every sane man knows the world would be happy and prosperous tomorrow if all men knew warfare was ended.

Early Persian Treasures Are Dug From Graves

University Of Pennsylvania Expedition Discovers Rare Exhibits

RELICS FOUND ARE 4,000 YEARS OLD

By RONALD E. MILLER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—Probably the earliest archaeological treasures ever found in Persia were unearthed by the discovery of a cemetery more than 4,000 years old at Tepe Hissar, a few miles from Damghan, Persia, by the joint Persian expedition of the university museum and the Pennsylvania museum of art. The notice of the discovery of the ancient cemetery was received by Horace H. F. Jayne, director of the University of Pennsylvania museum, from Dr. Erich Schmidt, field director of the expedition, it was learned today.

In the cemetery were found scores of graves containing the remains of an ancient people whose racial origin is unknown but who, archaeologists believe, may possibly form a connecting link between India and Mesopotamia. Damghan is located about 60 miles southeast of the Caspian sea, and is believed to have been the site of Hecatampylos, the ancient Parthian capital, a city which reached the height of its power about 250 B. C.

New Discoveries.

Dr. Schmidt described the findings of the expedition, enthusiastically acclaiming the discovery as one of the most enlightening accomplished by a Persian expedition of archaeologists. There are about 200 graves in the huge mound of Tepe Hissar, he explained, each of which gives forth valuable material upon which conclusions of the life of the people in that area 4000 years ago may be drawn.

"One of our most interesting discoveries," Dr. Schmidt said, "was a little girl's grave. There had been buried with her Lapis Lazuli beads, gold ear pendants, onyx beads and some small figurines carved in the shape of cows and sheep. Some plain silver pins and six little silver cups completed the child's equipment for the outer world.

"In one of the graves were found the remains of a warrior. Beside him were his weapons—a bident, a dagger, a battle axe and a helmet. A silver pitcher, covered with the purplish gray patina that is acquired with age, lay close to his head, and the left hand held two gold-coated rings and a string of Lapis Lazuli and onyx beads.

"The dead of Tepe Hissar and their mortuary equipment illuminate an entirely new and fascinating phase of human culture in this region of the world."

Excavation work will be continued at the cemetery throughout the winter, it was revealed.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

You can hardly complain of the weather for an election. Warm enough for the hot candidates and cool enough for anybody else. And to the fellow who wins tonight the weather will be perfect and to the loser the weather will be terrible. Weather's what you make it anyway.

Dropped in on a young couple last night who were celebrating their golden wedding anniversary. Fifty years together is a long time but the young lady in the case, Mrs. William Phillips is wondering where all the years have gone.

It seems to me that the word success can be written after their names. They haven't laid up any fortune insofar as money goes, although they are beyond any want, but they have built up something that money can't buy. Friends, respect, family, happiness, contentment. After all that's quite an achievement, and they wouldn't trade them for the bank balance of Henry Ford.

They're still picking strawberries and raspberries out on the Wilmington road. Believe it or not Mr. Ripley, but it is still being done. It was always my understanding that a strawberry was a delicate sort of an animal, disposed to fold up along about June or early July.

They may have crossed these berries with ironweed but anyway they're still picking them. And do they taste good at this time of the year.

And do you happen to know where Ferrona Junction is in New Castle? The question was asked by City Solicitor White in the city engineer's office yesterday and few there were who could answer it.

Ferrona Junction is where the Pennsylvania and Erie tracks cross down at Franklin bridge if you really must know and years ago it seems the place had this odd name. Why it was called Ferrona Junction rather than somebody else's junction is one for the book.

There used to be a place in New Castle known as New England which you might look up if you care to. Probably was down around the South Side but nobody seems to be able to say where.

This one has been run before, but the argument still ensues as to whether Lawrence County ever had 18 townships instead of the seventeen it now has.

There was a time when the county had 18 townships, the 18th (not an amendment) being Pollock Township. What was once Pollock Township is now a part of New Castle located down around the old Pollock Homestead.

LOOKING BACK

IN NEW CASTLE

Services of the Catholic church were held in this district beginning approximately a hundred years ago. About 1831-32, Catholic priests began to visit New Castle, where they ministered to the wants of a few scattered families. One of the first Catholics in the county was probably a Mrs. Doran, who was buried near New Bedford before 1810. Nicholas Brian another adherent of the Catholic faith was also in the county at an early date. It is said that he came to America with Lafayette during the Revolutionary war. The date of his settlement in the county is not known. James Mooney lived about a mile north of Mt. Jackson and Mr. Brian used to attend Mass at the Mooney home whenever a priest visited the vicinity. Lawrence O'Connor who lived on the Mahoning river in Union township, had four sons and six daughters baptized by Father Rafferty during one of his visits to the region. A colored man named William Arms who lived in Union township, a mile beyond Mahoningtown, had all his children baptized by Father Gibbs about 1840. Among the sponsors were James Mooney, Walter Flinn and Charles Kelly. The parents of William Arms always attended Mass as the opportunity afforded at a Mrs. O'Brien's home. They were formerly slaves of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, Md., who freed them before his death. When the canal was put under contract between Beaver and New Castle, there was a decided increase in the Catholic population of Lawrence county. The following are the names of priests who visited New Castle and vicinity in early days: Rev. Fr. Rafferty in 1834 and possibly a few years earlier; Father Garland about 1837; Father Gibbs about 1840; Father McCullough 1843; Father Reed 1845; Father Garvey 1854; Father O'Farrell 1856; Father Farren 1860; Father Welch 1862; Father Carnahan 1863.

Wheat Continues Price Advance

Western Farmers Are Benefitting By Continued Increase In Price

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—The price of wheat went up two cents a bushel Monday largely on the strength of a report that the Soviet will export no more wheat this year or next and when the market here closed the grain growers of the country potentially millions of dollars richer.

With Monday's advance wheat was worth 20 cents a bushel more than it was less than a month ago. Agricultural officials in Kansas estimate that the increase in the last ten days alone has put $16,000,000 in the pocketbooks of the farmers of that state.

After the market closed the Soviet embassy in Berlin denied the report that the country had withdrawn from the world market.

Other Crops Poor.

News of unfavorable crop conditions in other sections of the world also were believed partly responsible for the rising grain prices.

Bad weather and destructive parasites have cut the crops of Australia and the Argentine materially.

In German grain circles it is said millions of bushels of wheat in France and Germany are unfit for the mill. From 30,000,000 to 50,000,000 bushels of French and German wheat, it is estimated, will need replacement because of rain. It has been sprouting in shocks and great quantities must be diverted from mills to be used as fodder.

The rainy weather has been general throughout Europe.

The United States consulate in Berlin confirmed reports that there were "considerable" decreases in Russian wheat exports.

World Crop None Too Big.

According to private advices reaching consular officials, the crops are bad in Siberia and the Ukraine, with a fair harvest in the Volga valley.

The consulate is said to have been privately advised that a considerable portion of the Soviet spring campaign is unmatured. Officials said the present world crop was not far in excess of world needs.

NOTED WELSHMAN TO SPEAK HERE

Rev. Rees T. Williams, pastor of the First Congregational church, announces that Friday evening his congregation and friends will be honored by the presence of Rev. D. Gwynfryn Jones, D. D., one of the most popular of the Welsh preachers, who will speak in English in the First Congregational church.

Dr. Jones has come to America as a delegate to the World Conference of Methodists at Atlanta, Ga., and is being greeted by overflow meetings wherever he speaks. All friends of the congregation are invited to enjoy this speaker.

Nose Leads To New Mineral Discovery

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 3.—When a Penn State mineralogist cracked open a piece of limestone in an abandoned quarry near here and was assailed by an odor of spoiled eggs, he found that he had uncovered the first native mineral ever reported from Centre county. A mineral is said to exist "native" when it is found in its pure form, and what R. R. Rosenkrans of the Pennsylvania State College faculty had uncovered was native sulphur. The odor was hydrogen sulphide.

Announcement of the discovery was made today by Dr. A. P. Honess professor of mineralogy at Penn State, after all tests and laboratory experiments had demonstrated the yellow deposits in the limestone to be pure sulphur.

"This discovery holds no commercial significance," Dr. Honess said, "but as a matter of scientific importance it is of considerable value."
